

This Could Be a Thing of Beauty If CIDC Proposal Accepted

Here are sections of Douglas Street on which CIDC beautification plan has been at least tem-

varded main entrance to city from both Trans-Canada Highway and Pat Bay Highway.

WHY ALL THE FUSS?

19 Out of 27 Have Own Parking Lots

Many of the petitioners against the banning of parking in the Capital Improvement District Commission plans to beautify Victoria's Douglas Street "gateway" already have off-street parking.

This is apparent to anyone driving the stretch of road between the Fountain Circle and Tolmie Avenue and backers of the plan are puzzled over the strong opposition that has been shown.

A total of 27 businessmen signed the petition against the CID's project to boulevard the city entrance with trees, grass and flowers.

19 Businesses Didn't Sign Up

It was also pointed out that 19 businesses on the stretch of street did not sign the petition; in fact favored the "face lift" wholeheartedly.

One of the 27 who signed the petition today admitted he signed without understanding what it was all about.

A. M. McPherson of the Doric Motor Hotel would have his name taken off.

"I was so darned busy at the time that I thought I was signing a petition to ban parking," he said. "I'm against all parking on arterial highways."

On the other hand, Bud Price, who runs a repair shop at 2892 Douglas, was one of the organizers of the petition stuck to his guns claiming:

"Banning of parking on the street would mean loss of business. Motorists simply would not pull into side streets to park."

Side-Street Parking Restricted

H. W. Neff of Saanich Lumber Yards Ltd., said his firm had limited off-street parking, but it was inadequate for the amount of business done. And for the most part, side-street parking was severely restricted.

Mr. Neff insisted he was not interviewed prior to the announcement of the beautification, no-parking project, as was claimed.

"All we know is what we read in the paper," he said.

Meanwhile, the CIDC was meeting this afternoon on the question. It was understood a further attempt would be made to save the plan, despite the city and Saanich council's rejection of it in view of the parking ban.

The CIDC has a government grant of $180,000 set aside for the project.

Tractor Swap Still Alive

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—New hopes arose Sunday that some way out may be found in the blocked negotiations to free prisoners captured in the anti-Castro rebel invasion of Cuba April 17.

John Hooker, executive secretary of the defunct Tractors for Freedom Committee, met for the second time in 24 hours with the 10-man delegation of prisoners dispatched here by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. The committee said negotiations with Castro were impossible.

Battle On Frontier

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—United Arab Republic and Israeli troops fought a 75-minute battle on the tense Syria-Israeli frontier Sunday night, an army spokesman said today.

BOY'S BODY IN PARK LAKE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The body of a three-year-old boy, his hands and feet bound with a woman's stockings, and a towel pulled tightly about his throat, was found Sunday floating in a park lake.

Police said he apparently was a victim of the mentally deranged woman who lured two other young children from their homes on Buffalo's north side recently, then left them bound and gagged beside railroad tracks. Those two children were not injured.

The boy, Andrew J. Ashley, had been missing since Friday afternoon. Police said death was due to drowning.

PREMIER IKEDA ... "no reprisals"

Japan Irked By Quotas On Imports

OTTAWA (UPI)—Japanese Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda said today he was dissatisfied with the quota system on Japanese exports to Canada.

But he said Japan was a free trader and as such would not take any reprisals against nations imposing restrictions on Japanese trade.

He predicted that Japan would double its imports from Canada. He said the increase would be mainly in iron ore, copper, coal and timber.

Ikeda told a press conference after holding a 90-minute discussion with Prime Minister Diefenbaker that Canada should increase its purchases from Japan because of Canada's favorable trade balance with that country. He noted that Canada sold $178 million worth of goods to Japan last year and bought $110 million in return.

NO REQUEST MADE

He said a specific request for removal of the quotas, self-imposed on textiles, flatware and electronic equipment at Canada's request, was not made during the conference with Diefenbaker.

Ikeda said he and Diefenbaker agreed on the principle of informal exchanges of views between Japanese and Canadian cabinet ministers on trade and economic matters. He said there was no decision on whether the exchange should take the form of a permanent committee, as agreed upon in Washington for a similar U.S.-Japanese group.

Mid-East Takeover Rejected

LONDON (AP)—Britain and Kuwait rejected today a move by Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassam to annex the rich Persian Gulf oil sheikdom. Britain also reaffirmed a pledge to go to the aid of the ruler, Sheikh Abdullah Al-Salim As-Sabah, if asked.

But qualified diplomats here reported that the ruler made no such request for immediate help in talks at his palace today with Britain's representative, John Richmond.

The sheik and the British agreed instead they will try to resist Kassam's takeover move calmly and quietly.

Both hope Kassam will be persuaded to modify his stand. Both are anxious to avert a major new Middle East crisis that could upset the stability of the sheikdom that supplies 40 per cent of Britain's oil.

PLEDGES SUPPORT

Kassam's claim seemed to signal a political, rather than military, campaign to take over the territory. The Iraqi leader announced Sunday he would send notes to all governments with which the Baghdad authorities have relations setting forth his case.

Tito Has Tonsillitis

JFK MOVES TO HALT SHIP STRIKE 80 DAYS

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy invoked the Taft-Hartley Act today in an effort to halt the strike of maritime unions.

In an executive order, the president said the strike will, "if permitted to continue, imperil the health and safety of the U.S. At the same time, Kennedy set up a three-member emergency board to consider facts and circumstances of the dispute between sea-going unions and ship operators."

He set a deadline of Friday for the board to make its report.

The board, under the Taft-Hartley law, will make no recommendations, but will merely report on the issues of the dispute.

Unless the strike is settled in the meantime, Kennedy presumably will then seek an injunction to halt the strike for an 80-day cooling off period.

FLEMING:

Coyne or Gov't — He Had to Go

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming said today the central issue in the Coyne controversy is the question of who governs the country.

Opening Commons debate on the government's bill to have Parliament fire Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada, Mr. Fleming disclosed that in the winter of 1957-58 Mr. Coyne had rejected "firmly and angrily" a government request involving an easing of the money supply.

That, he said, was the reason the government disclaimed responsibility for monetary policy conducted by the central bank.

Mr. Fleming said the government might have acted sooner to have the governor removed. But he added:

"We desired above all to avoid creating controversy involving the Bank of Canada."

Referring to the government's request May 30 for Mr. Coyne's resignation, Mr. Fleming said the governor was

Two Arrested In Ontario

OTTAWA (UPI)—Raymond Bruneau, a former Liberal member of parliament, was arrested and charged today with accepting a $10,000 bribe in a 1956 post office deal during his term of office.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrested Bruneau at his Hawkesbury, Ont., home and brought him here to be arraigned Tuesday morning.

He was freed on $500 bail after spending several hours in jail.

Also arrested was Abe Bergeron of Cornwall, Ont., who allegedly owned the land involved in the deal. He was charged with "corrupting" Bruneau and was being brought here from Cornwall.

Bruneau, 44, represented the riding of Glengarry-Prescott in the House of Commons from 1949 to 1957, when he was defeated by a Conservative.

The police said the case involved land owned by Bergeron, who was selling it to the federal government as a post office site. It was alleged that Bergeron was willing to accept $38,000 when Bruneau said he could get more money for it.

Bruneau allegedly received a $48,000 cheque from the federal government for the land and turned over $38,000 to Bergeron.

WORKED FOR SEAWAY

Bergeron, 45, was employed by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority in Cornwall, but was dismissed when the Conservatives came to office in 1957.

Bergeron is now a service station operator while Bruneau is a businessman.

The charge alleged that Bruneau, "did unlawfully and corruptly agree to accept from Abe Bergeron a sum of money for the use of his influence of the said Raymond Bruneau in his official capacity as a Member of Parliament of Canada in respect of the sale of property owned by said Abe Bergeron to the Government of Canada and in respect to the employment of the said Bergeron by the Government of Canada."

Bruneau was charged under Sections 100 and 304 of the Criminal Code. One covered accepting of bribes by a member of parliament and the other false pretences.

Both men were brought to Ottawa because this was the site of the alleged offence.

REVOLT FAILS IN VENEZUELA

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—A military revolt flared and quickly died today in Barcelona, President Romulo Betancourt's government announced. Forty persons were reported killed. Betancourt said the rebels, threatened by loyal forces, by land, sea and air, held out only 4½ hours.

Radio Tropical of Barcelona said all the rebel leaders were captured. The interior ministry identified them as junior officers plus two ex-majors dismissed from the army for revolutionary plotting.

CAIRO (UPI)—Yemeni Ambassador Ahmed Mohammed Basha today denied reports that the Imam of Yemen has transferred his powers to his son, Crown Prince Mohammed Al-Badr.

FOREST FIRE DANGER IN NFLD. EASES OFF

HARE BAY, Nfld. (CP)—Some 200 firefighters watched anxiously early today, then relaxed slightly as two forest fires heading directly toward the community of Trinity subsided after sheering away from their direct route to the village.

However, the danger was not believed ended. Newfoundland's chief forester Ed Ralph, who visited the community 10 miles from here late Sunday night, advised Trinity residents there was no immediate danger to their community, but he would not say the village of 800 persons was out of danger.

The book, The Day Khrushchev Panicked, was written by George B. Mair, a Scottish physician.

In it he claims that the Soviet premier was ready to start a third world war on that September day when he was sailing across the Atlantic with other Communist bloc leaders in the liner Baltika en route to a meeting of the United Nations General Assembly in New York.

According to Mair, Khrushchev had the idea of raining destruction on the U.S. with "anti-matter" bombs fired from an orbiting satellite. The bombs supposedly would obliterate everything within a wide area.

But United States intelligence broke the Baltika's radio codes, found out about the plot and forced Khrushchev to abandon his plans by threatening to sink his ship in mid-Atlantic, Mair said.

The Scottish doctor said Khrushchev had a fit of fury over being thwarted but regained his composure by the time the Baltika docked in New York.

Mair was evasive to reporters about how he gained his information. But he insisted "90 per cent of it is true."

One reporter asked him why Khrushchev was sailing to New York while his scientists were planning to obliterate much of the United States.

"All I can say is that the Russians were sailing pretty far north and that most of the anti-matter was due to strike in the south," Mair replied.

"I suppose my publishers will be very cross about this, but I asked them to publish this book as fiction although most of it is true."

The publishers are Cassell's, a firm which published Sir Winston Churchill's war memoirs. Cassell's chairman, Dr. Desmond Flower, defended issuing Mair's book as non-fiction.

Six to Run In Saanich By-Election

Four new entries in a July 8 Saanich council by-election today brought to six the number of candidates contesting a vacant seat caused by the death of Coun. Alpslee Worthington.

Nominations close at noon Tuesday.

Some of the issues likely to be raised in the contest are:

1. Long-range planning for light industrial development.
2. Creation of an integrated civic centre near the new Town and Country Shopping Centre on Douglas.
3. The need for planning and zoning regulations in the area of the Victoria College campus at Gordon Head.

THREE NEWCOMERS

Among the six contestants are three who are newcomers to municipal politics. They are:

Robert Ostler, 3339 Doncaster, a B.C. Telephone Co. employee. He is a brother of Magistrate William Ostler.

Arnold Coey, 120 Homer Road, clerk in the Victoria Post Office.

Charles Parker, 593 Baker, civil servant in the B.C. Forest Service, a former Social Credit M.L.A. who represented the Peace River riding from 1952 to 1956.

The others are Robert Chard, 3774 Hobbs, a city lawyer; G. Stanley Eden, 3115 Mascana, businessman; Lionel Speller, 3416 Bethune, employee of Veterans' Hospital.

All three participated in the December elections last year.

The chief of staff said the Iraqi army "which destroyed the fortress of imperialism in the Middle East is ready at your disposal."

There were repercussions in the Middle East, where the rival ambitions of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic and those of Kassem have clashed.

A dispatch from Damascus said the Arab League council may hold an urgent session to consider what was called the Iraq-Kuwait crisis.

There was speculation that Saudi Arabia, another neighbor of Kuwait, might object to Kassem's move.

In his statement, the Iraqi premier insisted that Kuwait belonged to Iraq by historical right.

Belgium Queen 'Not Expecting'

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Queen Fabiola of Belgium is not expecting a baby in the near future, the Royal Palace announced here Sunday night.

A cryptic palace statement, which said Belgians should not expect "a happy event" at the palace in the near future, was greeted by dismay and disappointment throughout the country.

The announcement followed the disclosure by Pope John earlier this month that 33-year-old Spanish-born Fabiola was expecting.

COYNE OR GOV'T

Fleming said, he conveyed to Mr. Coyne a government request for an easing in the liquidity requirements of the chartered banks.

This is an informal requirement that the chartered banks maintain a reserve of liquid assets equal to at least 35 per cent of their deposit liabilities. It affects the banks' ability to expand their loans to the public.

Mr. Fleming said that when Mr. Coyne rejected this request, "that sent me scurrying to a study of the Bank of Canada Act." Under the act, the government had no power over the central bank's operations.

Mr. Fleming said that in the bank's annual report for 1957—issued in early 1958 during an election campaign—Mr. Coyne inserted a statement saying there had never been a tight money policy. This policy had been an issue in the year 1957 and 1958 election campaigns and Opposition Leader Pearson had seized on the governor's statement as "political manna from heaven."

SERIES OF SPEECHES

Beginning in the fall of 1959, Mr. Coyne had begun a series of public speeches extending over a year and a half dealing, not with monetary policy, but with fiscal policy—"one of the most controversial aspects of the political spectrum."

Fiscal policy relates to actions by the government in the tax and economic fields. Monetary policy, the field of the Bank of Canada, relates to money supply and the integrity of Canada's currency.

Mr. Fleming said that perhaps the government might have intervened drastically earlier. But in the prevailing political atmosphere, this might have been denounced by the governor and the Opposition as a move to muzzle free speech when it became critical of the government.

Czech Farm Shakeup

VIENNA (AP)—Czechoslovakia Saturday announced a major government reshuffle after party chief Antonin Novotny had blasted the Communist country's agricultural officials.

"So we endeavored patiently to live with the situation," he said, hoping that Dec. 31, 1961 end of Mr. Coyne's seven-year appointment—"might come quickly."

Mr. Fleming said members of Mr. Coyne's own board of directors had warned him that his speeches were involving the bank in politics.

The governor's speeches were "isolationist, bureaucratic, centralizing and anti-American," Mr. Fleming said.

It was last February when the increase in Mr. Coyne's pension was found—whereby the governor got $25,000 at retirement rather than something like $12,000.

BREACH OF DUTY

It was a serious dereliction of duty that the governor had not told the government or had the amended bank bylaw published, Mr. Fleming said.

Mr. Coyne had alleged that only the pension matter was given to him as reason for dismissal. In fact, Mr. Fleming said, he had listed five reasons in an hour-long May 30 meeting with the governor:

1. His speeches were openly at odds with government policy.

2. He had embroiled the bank in political controversy.

3. His views were incompatible with anticipated far-reaching government programs.

4. The governor lacked the confidence of Canadian financial institutions with whom the bank must have good relations.

5. The pension.

"We shook hands and said goodbye," Mr. Fleming said.

Mr. Coyne had said nothing about any attacks on his integrity. Then, instead of resigning before the June 12-13 meeting of the board of directors at Quebec City and letting a successor be appointed, the governor had opened up with a carefully calculated program designed to get in the first word.

GOVERNOR PROUD

Busy, Happy Trip For 'Wickaninish'

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes is proud of the new name bestowed on him by the people of Opihts Indian village on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

During his recent visit there Mr. Pearkes was given the hereditary title of Wickaninish. He also acquired an eight-foot totem pole and a host of happy memories during his week-long tour of Indian communities on Vancouver Island and the mainland.

His Honor received the totem pole as a gift from the people of Alert Bay. The Indians of Friendly Cove on Nootka Sound gave him a fearsome "spearman" mask. The Bella-Goola tribe placed an eagle feather on his head to signify that he had been given the freedom of the city.

The lieutenant-governor was a passenger aboard HMCS Assiniboine and was enthusiastically received at every port he visited.

He asked school principals to give the children a holiday and stopped to autograph their flags.

On the wharf at Sointula, the Finnish-Canadian community on Malcolm Island, a small boy asked: "Can you fire the gun, sir?"

His Honor did not touch the gun, but said something to one of the crew, and a few minutes later a blank charge boomed from a mortar.

NOISY SALUTE

At Alert Bay, on Cormorant Island, flag-draped seine boats sounded a noisy salute on their sirens as they chugged past.

Hundreds cheered as the lieutenant-governor stepped ashore to the music of a red-coated high school band.

On a tour of the island he unveiled a new cenotaph for Branch 198 of the Canadian Legion; visited St. George's Hospital and St. Michael's Indian Residential School, and watched three football matches.

NO REPRIEVE FOR SLAYER

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet has decided not to intervene in the death penalty for murder imposed on Louis William Baldwin Fisher of Toronto, it was announced today. Fisher, 25, is scheduled to be hanged Tuesday.

He was convicted in the knife-slaying of Mrs. Margaret Bennett, 36, whose slashed body was found in a Toronto parking lot June 10, 1960.

Fisher was convicted of murder by a trial jury last Oct. 25 with no recommendation for mercy. Appeals to the Ontario court of appeal and the Supreme Court of Canada were turned down.

Final Week Begins Before Summer Recess

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA — Prescriptions for better Canadian health and welfare services piled up Saturday on the Commons desk of Health Minister Monteith, the man responsible for 22 cents of every dollar the government spends.

Debate covered civil defence, portable pensions, and the aged as the Commons began study of the $1,592,000,000 spending estimates of the department—second in size only to defence.

The Commons enters today what may be the last week in this phase of the session begun Nov. 17. It was expected that Parliament would rise next Friday for a summer recess and resume about Sept. 1. Commons members took time Saturday for special mention of the celebration of St. Jean Baptiste Day, national feast of French Canada, and Discovery Day in Newfoundland marking the 1497 arrival of explorer John Cabot.

$2.6 Million for 'Atom War Hospitals'

Mr. Monteith said certain technical difficulties have so far prevented oral polio vaccine being licensed in Canada. He also announced the government will spend $2,600,000 this fiscal year on portable nuclear-attack hospitals to be sited across the country.

He added that the level of radioactive strontium-90 in milk from nuclear test fallout has been declining.

Judy LaMarsh (L—Niagara Falls) urged a national conference among governments and volunteer agencies on the aging. Modern tensions and

Contributory Old-Age Pensions Urged

A Conservative MP said that if the government introduced legislation covering contributory old age pensions "it would be the most popular health and welfare legislation ever introduced in this country."

W. A. McLennan, member for New Westminster, said 10,000 old age pensioners in his constituency have come from other provinces "to live in the banana belt of Canada."

Some found themselves in "a pretty hopeless situation in the sunset years of their lives."

He asked the government to consider helping them by increased social assistance.

A Liberal MP's plea for more financial and moral support of Canada's 145,000 epileptics brought desk-thumping applause from both sides of the House Saturday.

J. P. Deschatelets, Montreal Maisonneuve-Rosemont, said epileptics suffer as much from lack of understanding by society as from the illness, a disease of the nervous system that causes frequent seizures. In Quebec, Mr. Deschatelets said, epileptics are forbidden to attend school. "Only those the emphasis on younger workers — plus scientifically induced longer life expectancy — made the problem urgent.

Laurier Regnier (PC — St. Boniface) said a business-like, non-volunteer civil defence set-up would end Canadian unemployment and provide some protection in the event of nuclear attack. The international situation demanded such a step.

Erhart Regier (CCF — Burnaby, Coquitlam) said that was a nonsensical view. More effort should go toward heading off nuclear war.

who can afford private tutoring are educated.

There were 10,500 persons suffering from the disease in Montreal alone, about 40,000 in the province and some 145,000 in Canada.

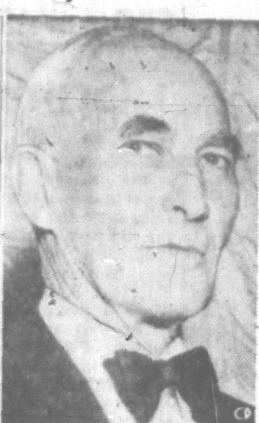

He called for a giant program of medical research into the disease, including investigations of progress in this field in other countries including those behind the Iron Curtain. Research centres could be set up in cities of the world to treat and rehabilitate victims.

Epileptics should be allowed to attend schools, he said. Education for them was even more necessary than for others.

Jobs should be provided—even if this had to be done through legislation.

No Canadian munitions have been delivered to Portugal, a NATO ally, since last November, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said.

He was replying to a question Thursday by Paul Martin (L—Essex East), who asked for a policy statement on the matter in view of Portugal's colonial policy in Angola.

A. D. McCURDY
... Silver Dart

Canadian Air Pioneer Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — A funeral with full military honors will be held here Wednesday for John Alexander Douglas McCurdy, former lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia and the first British subject to achieve powered flight in the Commonwealth.

Mr. McCurdy died Sunday in hospital, at the age of 74. With the approach of the First World War, McCurdy again tried to interest the Canadian defence department in a Canadian flying corps.

Sir Sam Hughes, then defence minister, dashed his hopes with the statement that aircraft would never play a part in modern warfare.

Canada commemorated the 50th anniversary of this first flight in 1959 with the issue of a stamp bearing the image of the Silver Dart.

In February, 1909, Mr. McCurdy started his neighbors in Baddeck, N.S., when he took off and flew three-quarters of a mile in the Silver Dart, a fragile aircraft of his own design.

His flight, the first in Canada, occurred six years after that of the famous Wright brothers, although the Wright plane took off with the aid of a guiding track. The Silver Dart got into the air on motor power alone.

MADE OWN DESIGN
McCurdy's aircraft, designed after he graduated in mechanical engineering from the University of Toronto in 1906, incorporated the best features of many previous machines.

It embodied a three-wheel undercarriage, tapered wings and a degree of balancing control.

Powered by a water-cooled engine, the Silver Dart had a top speed of 40 miles an hour.

Russia to Outspeed U.S. by 1970, Says K

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev declared Sunday that the Soviet Union is now the No. 2 country in the world and by 1970 it will have shoved the United States out of first place.

In a highly emotional speech to a Communist party rally in Alma Ata, capital of Kazakhstan, Khrushchev said that the Soviet Union has already beaten Britain and France.

His voice was so highly raised and so charged with emotion that it was difficult for radio listeners in Moscow to understand him.

"We, the country which has existed for only 44 years, the country which was far behind Western countries, has come to occupy second place in the world," he said.

"England, mistress of the seas; Africa and Asia—we left them behind us. We left France behind us, too."

"Comrades! There is only America."

"And this country can be compared to a worn-out runner. He had the prize—but others have been born, trained and are now running."

"SNAPPING AT HEELS"

"The United States is now running on its past reputation but at the finish line the young, fresh, strong runner will break the tape and our socialist country—strong, organized, mobilized—is snapping at the heels of America—not silently, but saying 'Look, we are in the race. Hurry up or we will overtake you!'"

Khrushchev said American

The Proof of the Pudding

MR. FLEMING THINKS THAT the devaluation of the Canadian dollar will raise the cost of living but the increase will be "minimal."

That remains to be seen. The extent of the increase must depend on the extent of the devaluation. Every cent of decline in the value of the dollar simply means a cent of extra cost for all imports. In a nation of massive imports that extra cost cannot be small.

Moreover, as a devalued dollar acts precisely like an extra tariff and protects the Canadian producer, he will tend to raise his prices for goods made in Canada, so far as possible. The price of both imported and native goods is bound to go up, at least to some extent. That is always the cost of currency devaluation, the oldest resort of all governments in trouble.

Probably, in Canada's circumstances, some devaluation was desirable at present and unavoidable, but let us never suppose that a nation can automatically get richer by cheapening its money.

Every dollar of fixed savings held by the Canadian people is being devalued. Every man who holds a bond, a life insurance policy or other fixed asset must lose part of it, in actual value and purchasing power, as the dollar declines and prices rise.

We have yet to see how far that process will go. Mr. Fleming refuses to say how far he will, or can, drive the dollar down on the international exchanges but whatever he does in the end he is completely reversing all his former views and swallowing the words of his 1960 budget.

Then he rejected as a dangerous, unthinkable speculation any attempt to use Canada's gold and hard currency reserves to influence the international price of the dollar. Now he proposes to use them for this purpose without telling us, perhaps without knowing himself, where the policy will lead.

But he does tell us candidly that his policy can be self-defeating if the reduction in our export prices, through devaluation, is quickly eaten up by rising productive costs.

That is an obvious and immediate danger. In British Columbia, for example, officials of unions in the great timber industry are saying that they agreed to forego wage increases this year but will demand them in the next contract negotiations. The industry, they say, will profit by devaluation and can easily afford to pay higher wages. If wages and other productive costs are thus to rise generally all the advantages of devaluation could be quickly lost and the disadvantages, in higher prices and eroded savings, would remain.

Mr. Fleming has launched a powerful engine into motion. The question now is whether he can control it. His record so far—his five successive deficits since 1957, his guarantee to balance the budget a year ago, his discovery this year that an unprecedented deficit is required, and the sudden revolution in all his thinking—provides no confidence in his management.

More than anything else, in fact, his latest budget is a confession of total mismanagement in the past, a doubtful promise of better management in the future. The proof of his new pudding will be found only in the eating.

A Notable Success

WITH AN IMPRESSIVE RESPONSE that well indicates the high reputation of the organization, Greater Victorians have put the Salvation Army campaign for $245,000 to build a home for elderly citizens over the top by $18,000.

The building quota of $200,000 will go directly into construction of the Matson Sunset Lodge in Esquimalt on the site of the old Sam Matson home. The building will provide a handsome addition to Greater Victoria's facilities for older folk, with accommodation for 120 single men and women, 10 suites for married couples, dining and lounge rooms, an infirmary, sun rooms, handicraft facilities and other attractive features.

The total cost of the establishment will reach $900,000, of which the local appeal for funds constituted an important part. The hundreds of workers who collected donations have done an excellent and much appreciated job.

This will be an institution of which the sponsors may be proud, for which the future residents will be grateful, and on which generous Greater Victorians can congratulate themselves.

A More Realistic U.S. Public

COMMENTS ON MR. ADLAI Stevenson's report to President Kennedy imply a prevalence of gloom. Latin-America, though it is recovering from a sharp hostility toward the United States over the Cuban invasion, is still not showing the affection for the big northern neighbor which Americans might wish.

There are, on the other hand, certain encouraging signs in the countries visited by Mr. Stevenson—an apparent desire by many South American leaders to improve the lot of their people.

Mr. Stevenson's report will be weighed and analyzed in an atmosphere favorable to greater American effort in promoting friendship south of the Rio Grande.

It will be weighed and analyzed, also, in a domestic atmosphere apparently more mature than would have been the case a year or two ago. Americans, in the view of competent observers, are gaining a new ability to view relationships with other countries in better perspective. They are no longer as deeply wounded when foreign groups react in terms other than affection to American actions and policies. They are beginning to appreciate the fact that foreigners have a right to make their own judgments on the United States and need not arrive at opinions entirely flattering to the western leader.

Here, surely, is a substantial advance in American public thinking. When the people of the United States decline to recoil in grief when they are not loved, they are in a better frame of mind to act reasonably and realistically to the attitudes of their hemispheric neighbors.

That, at least, is a substantial gain, no matter how overcast the future seems to be in South and Central America.

Lead Life-Preservers

ONE OF THE COMEDY ROUTINES predating the Keystone Cops in early movies centred on the lead-life-preserver. A character in the skit would fall into deep water and yell for help. His friend would look around, find a conventional-looking life-preserver and heave it to the victim. The life-preserver would fall short and sink immediately to the bottom.

The stunt was good for laughs over the years.

According to Harry Hamper, manager of the B.C. Safety Council, a variant of the gag is still being played, unwittingly, and it has no laugh content at all.

He says that equipment, being sold as life-jackets, or floats, which becomes saturated upon immersion and, rather than buoying up the person using it, helps to drag him down. A six-year-old in North Vancouver almost drowned in a neighbor's pool a few days ago because of misplaced trust in such equipment.

The moral, as the boating and bathing season moves into full swing, is to test all life-preservers, jackets, floats and the like to see if they belong to the pre-Keystone era or actually work. It's a poor time to make the test when an accident happens.

Too Much Yeast

BECAUSE THE CANADIAN dollar has fallen in value compared with that of the United States, flour prices to bakers have been increased by 25 cents per 100 pounds in this country, bakery officials announce.

In consequence, they say, the price of a loaf of bread will rise more than one cent. If the weight of a loaf is 16 ounces, the increase in the price of flour would amount to one-quarter of a cent a pound. The prospective rise in the price of a loaf, according to the prediction, is more than four times that amount.

What happened to old-fashioned arithmetic in this business of setting prices?

Mr. Hees: "I can't take you with me on this trip."

DOWN TO EARTH ADVICE By B. A. TOBIN

Covering the Garden Beat

MY FRIEND Mr. Jack Beasly, whose very informative gardening column appears regularly in this paper, has been writing about mulches. A mulch, it appears, is any dried or rotting vegetable material spread around the growing things in your garden in order to keep the ground moist. Dried grass, hay, compost—all kinds of things can be used. And they're all good as long as they do the job. But you will notice that all of these materials require some work. Grass or hay must be cut and dried, compost must be carried to and from the compost heap, leaves must be raked and placed, there's obviously an awful lot of muscle power wrapped up in mulch. And that is a problem.

I am happy to announce to Jack and to the gardening world that I have solved this problem.

I don't cut mulch, rake mulch, carry mulch, shovel mulch.

I grow mulch. I grow mulch right on the spot where it's needed, and so avoid all the effort required by the conventional types.

Makes Perfect

Even this method is not devoid of a problem or two, of course. Like anything else, it takes practice.

You have a bed of half a dozen rose bushes, for instance. After a while you observe a number of little green shoots making their appearance in the soil around the roses. In succeeding days these shoots grow and expand and you realize eventually that they must be weeds.

In fact, you begin to recognize some of the old familiar leaves—the chickweed, the dandelion, the thistle, the sourgrass, the—you know—weeds.

Now the normal impulse of any gardener at this point—and even before, for some extreme devotees—is to pluck the weeds, cart them to the compost heap, watch them develop into mulch, and then cart them back to the rose bed, and then cart them back to the rose bed, and then cart them back to the rose bed.

After a great deal of study and experimentation I have developed a different system. And don't think it hasn't taken a lot of practice.

I leave the weeds where they are.

Heavy Growth

They are thus free to grow and burgeon, spreading their delicate fronds above the ground and keeping the sun's hot rays from drying out same. As time goes on the weeds form a thick, moist, green carpet all over the rose bed, and the bushes and the soil are protected by as fine a stand of heavy mulch as one could wish for.

Now see the genius of the plan. As the lush green of summer fades to the brown of fall and winter, the weeds with and dry. Where the thick green mass once protected the earth from drying out, now the dry brown mass protects the earth from frost.

The summer mulch has automatically been converted into an excellent winter mulch. And all this, it will be noted, without the use of a single shovel, hoe, rake or wheelbarrow.

The conventional types of mulch appear to include only vegetable material. In conforming to this restriction they have failed to take advantage of any other very fine material whose merits I discovered some time ago during my horticultural research. I refer to the human body.

New Discovery

This type is, of course, more strictly a lawn mulch—a form of mulch which the gardening books do not seem to mention.

The mulch is applied by picking out a likely piece of lawn, preferably in the sun, stripping one's attire down to swimming trunks, and spreading oneself as flatly and horizontally as possible over the grass.

This sort of mulching may be applied face down or face up, depending on the heat of the sun and the whim of the mulcher. The method also has the advantage of being portable, so that various other areas of the lawn may be mulched on succeeding days as required.

Here again, it will be noted, there is no need for shovels, hoes, rakes or wheelbarrows, although a small tray to hold a bottle, glass and cake-plate may be found convenient.

I give the world my discoveries for what they are worth, and with no thought of seeming to disparage the more conventional methods as described by the garden columnist. And in any case, Jack, thank you very much.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Grimmest Soul-Searching

THE debonair surface of President Kennedy's Washington is a mask, at the moment, for the grimmest governmental soul-searching that has been seen since the end of the Second World War. The cause, as may be suspected, is Nikita S. Khrushchev's series of semi-ultimatums on the subject of Berlin. At Vienna, the President met Khrushchev's thinly-veiled threats with stony determination. At their last short encounter to say goodbye to one another, Khrushchev went especially far—as though to see whether one more extra-hard probe would not make Kennedy wince.

Khrushchev closed with the warning that he would make his grab for Berlin before the close of the year. But Kennedy merely made the laconic answer, according to report, that if Khrushchev meant what he said, the next winter was likely to be chilly.

Before Vienna, however, President Kennedy and his policymakers had gone no further than making up their minds to hold firm at Berlin. Like all the rest of the world, they had lived with the Berlin crisis for two whole years. They had come, perhaps wrongly, to take the crisis too much for granted, as though it were a kind of international asthma.

What Khrushchev said to the President, the aide-memoire he handed to him at the end of their meeting, and what he said in his report to his own people, have all combined to give the Berlin crisis a new and far more ugly look.

Thus the governmental soul-searching has begun. It is taking the form of a careful study of all the old "contingency plans," plus some new plans recently devised, for parrying Khrushchev's threatened grab for Berlin with maximum firmness and minimum risk.

Recent Report

The stage reached in this process was misrepresented by a recent report that inter-Allied contingency planning for Berlin had already been resumed. French, British, German, and American officials met here last week to discuss the best reply to Khrushchev's Vienna aide-memoire.

But true inter-Allied contingency planning—discussion of the best course to take if and when the final punch comes—will not be seriously attempted for a little while.

This is because the American government still needs a little time to reach its own crucial decision about the best course to take.

There are several different foci of governmental introspection, at the moment. On the highest level, the President himself has begun active consultations with the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other relevant officials, including the Director of Civilian Defence Mobilization, Frank Ellis.

At the next level, Presidential Assistant McGeorge Bundy has been charged with rounding up and analyzing all possible viewpoints for his chief. At the State Dept., Secretary Dean Rusk has put the veteran Assistant Secretary, Foy Kohler, in charge of Berlin planning. Assistant Secretary Paul H. Nitze has been given comparable responsibilities at the Defence Dept.

Most significantly of all, the President has asked former Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson to review the whole mass of contingency plans and other data on the Berlin crisis, and to report to him at an early date. The choice of Acheson as the President's chief special consultant in itself indicates a policy-tendency which will not please the advocates of the softer forms of compromise.

Two Measures

At the moment, the things to watch for are two measures which are already being expressed at the highest level—at least partial military mobilization and an emergency effort to strengthen America's lamentably weak civil defence system.

An increasing number of policymakers favor these drastic-seeming measures because they appear to be dictated by the inherent logic of the crisis. To begin, Khrushchev was obviously disappointed and surprised, and some think he was impressed, by the President's firmness at Vienna.

But he was not sufficiently impressed to give the smallest sign of any change of course. He left Vienna still threatening to grab for Berlin, and saying he would make a nuclear war if anyone tried to stop him.

Therefore, it is necessary to show Khrushchev, in the most convincing fashion, that the American government is in deadly earnest about the defence of Berlin's freedom. The only way to do this is to make all possible preparations, including preparations for war if need be.

Partial mobilization and an emergency effort to remedy our civil defence weaknesses are the obvious preparations to make, in this kind of crisis involving such a clear and early risk.

These preparations need to be made, moreover, whether the American government means to stand pat on its Berlin rights, or means to seek a settlement by negotiation. For even if negotiation is the choice, the Western negotiators will not have an ounce of leverage at the confining table, unless the Western allies seem to be in earnest about Berlin's defence.

'Can We Afford Exclusion?'

Britain's eventual decision to join or not to join the European Common Market will be a vital one not only for herself but for Canada and the rest of the Commonwealth. The following excerpts from a recent speech by the U.K. secretary of state for foreign affairs, Lord Home, addressed to the House of Lords, give some British thinking on this important topic.

WE must face the fact that with the union of the Six there is an economic division in Europe today and nothing can be more certain than that if economic division is allowed to persist it will be followed by political tension.

Therefore in working for closer relations with the Common Market I would claim the U.K. is not working or acting out of character or lunging off at a tangent. To interdependence within our alliances, to interdependence within the Commonwealth, we should be trying to add interdependence within Europe.

If I thought the Common Market with the U.K. in it was likely to be an inward-looking organization I would reject the proposition that we should join it. Because the whole of our history has been built on an outward-looking Britain, looking indeed to the whole world as the platform of her operation.

One of Several

But I do not believe it would be an inward-looking association: it would be one of several groups of which the United States would be another, and the Commonwealth another, which would be contributing to the strength and the freedom of the free world. So on the broadest political grounds... there is good reason for British association with the Common Market.

I still insist that if we are to be a reliable ally and if we are to be a leading partner in the Commonwealth then our economic strength lies at the foundation of our ability to fulfil those roles. If that is true then it is equally true that our economic strength—and this sounds almost too simple to repeat but we must repeat it over and over again—depends on our ability to sell and that depends on our ability to go where the markets are best and where the markets are expanding.

We know enough about modern industry and particularly about an economy depending very largely upon the engineering industry to know that it operates most efficiently where there is a large home market. Europe is on our doorstep with a market of 250 million people and that market is expanding.

Economic Side

On this economic side of the problem, if we are to maintain our standard of living and consumption—and the ability of the U.K. citizen to consume has a direct impact on Commonwealth trade—and if we are to be in a position to export the capital for which the Commonwealth is hungry today, then we must ask ourselves—and the Commonwealth must join in asking this question most seriously—whether we can afford to be excluded from this European market which is expanding so rapidly and offering so many opportunities.

Not only that, but in passing we should look at and face the question as to whether there is indeed any other way—any other comparable way—in which the U.K. can increase its wealth so that it may consume the maximum amount of Commonwealth trade and may export the maximum amount of capital to Commonwealth markets. Where else can we find the earnings on the necessary scale?

While the U.K. retained free entry for Commonwealth goods the Commonwealth countries began to manufacture for themselves, and as they naturally wanted to begin to sell their goods to third parties, the preference for British exports has gradually been eroded. I will give an example.

In 1950 the Commonwealth imported 28 per cent of their goods from the U.K. By 1959 the proportion was 22 per cent.

Not Reversed

I hoped when I attended the Commonwealth Economic Conference at Montreal that the resolutions which we passed at that conference would reverse that tendency, but in fact—and again I think for inevitable reasons, because the Commonwealth countries are becoming manufacturing countries; and a topical illustration of this has been given by the speech of the finance minister in Ottawa—the trend has in fact not been reversed.

I think these were the sort of considerations which led Lord Casey to conclude—an agonizing conclusion I agree with him—that it would be well for Britain to consider very seriously joining the Common Market, and which led me to the conclusion which I gave in a speech in Chicago that Britain in the Common Market might be able to give more help to the Commonwealth than if Britain remain outside.

Therefore I would conclude that while we should maximize our Commonwealth trade in every way we can—and I would commend to my Commonwealth colleagues and partners that they should study again the results of the Montreal conference—at the same time we should increase our earnings in Europe. It would be difficult to do that unless we were inside the Community.

But although the arguments seem to me to lean strongly towards such an association, I could not myself nor could my colleagues take a final decision until we know the price of entry, whether the requirements both for ourselves and for the Commonwealth and for our EFTA partners are negotiable or not. The conditions of entry therefore will play a very large part in the final reckoning.

The Man Who Pays

In your June 15 issue you quote me as saying that if the Peace River was not developed the B.C. Electric could not lose on the shares they have purchased in the Peace River Company because they would be charged to their "shareholders". This should read "consumers".

The point I was making was that any losses taken by the B.C. Electric in such a situation would be regained by the company via the electricity bills paid by the consumer.

When Part of the Face Swells Up

Enthusiastic Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

A number of people write asking me what to do for a swelling which comes in some part of the face. Sometimes an eye will swell shut, or one side of the face will swell, or the lips will swell, and the doctor has so far been unable to find a cause.

Alvarez

Naturally, I cannot guess what the cause is, I can only say that I have seen a number of these people in whom I couldn't make a diagnosis, even after much study. In some cases I suspected a nervous origin; in others, I wondered if the swellings were related to the patient's high blood pressure. In a few cases by keeping a diary the patient was able to find that the swelling came when she took an aspirin tablet or a dose of some other commonly used drug.

I remember a woman whose lips used to swell up when her young son came back from a hunting trip in the California hills and kissed her. What happened was that his perspiration was full of the harmful substance which comes from poison ivy. Another woman swelled up here and there whenever she picked up her son's trousers after he had been walking through poison ivy. At other times, she got into trouble from patting her dog who had been roving through the woods.

Always, when I see a woman whose eyelids are swelling I inquire carefully to see if she has recently changed any of her cosmetics. I remember a woman who started using a new fingernail polish, and that was what was producing the swelling. occasionally, under the influence of emotion, persons can get swellings here and there. It is possible that the swelling could come from some chemical which the person's hands got into, either in a factory or in the home. Usually I think the person most likely to find the cause of the trouble is the patient.

One of the miserable diseases which afflicts mankind is called muscular dystrophy. Usually it begins in childhood or even in infancy, and soon the child finds that some of his muscles are so weak they hardly can do their work. Fortunately, for the last 10 years there has been a Muscular Dystrophy Association which has been doing a number of very commendable things.

Clinics are organized in some universities and teaching centres. There, new drugs constantly are being tried out, and research is being done into the nature of the defect in the muscles.

In some U.S. cities the association has brought parents of these children together for a discussion of their problems.

Research work has advanced much more rapidly since 1955, when, at the Jackson Memorial Laboratory, a dystrophic mouse appeared. Now there is a special breed of these dystrophic mice, and they are being sent all over the U.S. for research purposes. The disease of the muscles has appeared in a number of other laboratory and some farm animals. Some day some substance will be found which will cause the weak muscles to work normally.

ONTARIO GROUP CREATES STIR

Alliance With New Party Backed by Young Liberals

MILFORD BAY, Ont. (CP)—A resolution apparently looking for an alliance or merger between the Liberal party and the New Party was passed Saturday night at the annual convention of the Ontario Young Liberals Association.

The resolution, approved at a lightly-attended evening session while most delegates were at executive meetings or a dance, drew violent opposition from president Royce Frith of the province's senior Liberal association and caused a stir that lasted well into Sunday morning.

After a meeting with party officials Harry Malcolmson of Toronto, the sponsor, said amalgamation wasn't what he had in mind.

"The idea is that New Party members should return to us," he said. "We should be more aware of the opportunity to bring into the Liberal party a large body of presently uncommitted anti-government opinion."

PARTY SPLIT

The resolution didn't name the New Party or speak specifically of a merger. It said the party "of essentially Liberal opinion" now is split between two groups to the advantage of the Progressive Conservatives.

"Therefore, be it resolved that means be explored to re-establish the Liberal party as the unified party embodying all progressive elements of opinion without regard to alleged party ideology."

But the comments of Mr. Malcolmson and Mr. Frith while the resolution was under discussion indicated a merger was the central theme.

"Unless we do something before the next election the Defenbaker government may be returned to power," said Mr. Malcolmson, 28-year-old president of the Toronto and Yorks Young Liberal Association.

MUST TAKE ACTION

"We have to come to terms with the New Party."

Many of the socialistic policies to which Liberals objected had been abandoned by the New Party, he said, so now there could be room for discussion.

Mr. Frith, who said any merger would come about only over his dead political body, said the New Party represented special-interest groups in a way that was contrary to Liberal policy.

The resolution passed 10 to 8 with five abstentions. De-

French-U.S. Control Plan For Laos Rejected by Reds

GENEVA (Reuters)—Communist China today rejected Franco-American proposals as a basis for discussion on the functions of the International Control Commission in Laos.

Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi told the 14-nation conference as it went into session after a three-day recess that the French-American draft protocol cannot be the basis for discussion.

The French-American proposals spelled out exact powers and step-by-step procedures to give effective supervisory and control functions to the three-nation commission, consisting of Poland, Canada and India.

Communist delegations want the commission's powers limited severely to avoid an infringement of Laotian sovereignty.

During the last seven years, Chen said, the United States has used the 1954 Geneva agreements on Indochina to interfere in Laotian internal affairs and subject the country to repeated threats of war.

"DOMESTIC ISSUE"

He declared that any new agreement on Laos would not be based on the 1954 agreement for ending hostilities in Laos because the previous war in Laos was an international one involving the French and the peoples of Indochina.

"The present war in Laos is a domestic war," he said. Soviet delegate Georgi Pushkin said the Laotians should be allowed to settle their own problems.

The West wants the control commission to have its own equipment quickly to police the cease-fire in Laos effectively. But the Soviet and Communist delegations say the commission should get its equipment from the political parties in Laos.

Heat Problems? You're Not Alone

Problems arise in hot weather which tax the ingenuity of gardeners, and one concerns the plants which ordinarily do so well in the cooler coastal gardens, the pansies and violas.

Hilda

These frequently remain in bloom the year around, requiring only that the spent blossoms are promptly removed and a dressing of well rotted compost is spread closely around the plants by the end of June.

Some years, however, blooming will cease if the temperatures rise into the 80s, as they have in most of our south Vancouver Island areas during the past week or so.

CUT CLOSELY

While flowering may not be resumed immediately, the plants will benefit if they are cut over fairly closely with a large pair of scissors.

All long ends can be removed, regardless of whether they have a flower-bud on the end. If the plants are not so straggling, less cutting back will be required.

If well-rotted compost is not too plentiful, mix 50 per cent of the quantity needed with dampened blue whale peat moss. Spread closely around the plants, pushing some beneath the little mats of stems.

Water well, and don't allow the plants to dry out on future warm days. While violas are considered to be longer-lived than pansies, growth on both these plants will be renewed and flowering resumed when temperatures come down to around the 70 degree mark again.

U.S. Wants More Nations In Arms Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Russia resume preliminary disarmament talks today amid reports of a new United States move to break an apparent deadlock.

Informed sources say the United States has proposed expanding next month's disarmament conference to 20 nations by bringing in nations from Africa, Latin America, and possibly Asia and the Far East.

The proposal was reported to have been made last week during earlier meetings between President Kennedy's disarmament adviser, John J. McCloy, and Valerian A. Zorin, Russia's United Nations delegate.

Zorin was cool to the idea, reports said. There was no official confirmation of the 20-nation proposal, but sources said it suggested addition of three nations from South America, three from Africa and several from Asia and the Far East. The talks are in preparation for resumption of disarmament negotiations, which may start July 31 at the United Nations in New York.

S. Africa Abandoned By U.K., Louw Claims

WOLMARANSSTAD, South Africa (Reuters)—Foreign Minister Eric Louw said here today the United States and Britain were prepared to leave South Africa to the mercies of the Negroes in order to gain favor with new African states. Speaking before a meeting of the governing National party, Louw said: "Their own political interests come first with these countries, and this selfish motive is hidden behind a facade of moral lectures and morality." "Distorted and false" reports from foreign and local journalists in South Africa were the basis of attacks on South Africa. "Freedom of the press in South Africa is not in danger," he said, "provided distorted and false reports which damage South Africa are not sent out."

INQUEST has been ordered into death of newly-wed millionaire sportsman George Vanderbilt III, who plunged from 10th-floor window in San Francisco hotel Saturday night. Although no note was left, he was reported depressed over recent financial deals.

Civil Service Health Plan Broadened

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal civil servants, members of the armed forces, the RCMP, pensioners and their dependents will benefit from changes in the federal group-surgical-medical insurance plan announced by the finance department.

One change increases the maximum amount payable under the major medical expense benefit to $7,500 from $5,000.

EFFECTIVE JULY 1

The changes go into effect July 1. There will be no change in the premiums. The plan was initiated a year ago on a contributory basis.

Many out-patient services, including operation room, administration of anaesthetic and other drugs, application of casts, will be included in the benefits. The plan formerly provided out-patient benefits only for diagnostic x-ray and laboratory examinations.

Blood in his eye after being struck on shoulder by inside pitch, Cleveland Indians' outfielder Jim Piersall threw left hook at Jim Bunning, Detroit Tigers' pitcher, in wild fifth inning of their game Sunday at Cleveland. Bunning looks more amused than concerned. Piersall's pugilistic attempt emptied benches and resulted in wild melee around mound. He was thrown out of game along with mates Johnny Temple and Bob Hale. Tigers won 6-3, lost second game 4-3. (AP Wirephoto.)

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Half an hour before the men's 100-yard dash at the Vancouver Island track and field championships Saturday, Harry Jerome woke from a nap in the bowels of Victoria High School and walked slowly across the infield.

Other athletes relaxing on the sun-splashed grass cut short conversations and gazed in silent admiration at the tall, jut-jawed Jerome, one of the world's fastest humans.

Word of Jerome's attitude toward the press had preceded him. In the 1960 Olympics at Rome, Jerome became disenchanted with pencil-pushers who suggested his dismal performance was attributable more to a faint heart than the leg injury he pleaded.

In the two years since Jerome went from North Vancouver to University of Oregon he has proved conclusively there is nothing wrong with his heart. Or his legs, either. He twice ran the 100 in 9.3, equalling the world record. His 10 flat for the 100 metres at Saskatoon last summer made him the only man in history to share world records for both distances.

As he sauntered past the victory stand he was later to mount, Bob Hutchison, the meet director and I approached him.

Hutchison told Jerome that Frank Budd, co-holder of the world 100 mark, had that day run 9.2 in the AAU meet at New York.

"Really?" asked Jerome. "With the wind behind him?"

"We didn't hear about any wind," he was told.

"9.2, eh," said Jerome, in disbelief. "Well, he was about due." Then as if he were unable to grasp Budd's clocking... "Did he really do it?"

"Do it!" said Hutchison. "He's done it."

Jerome shook his head, offered a polite "excuse me, please" and jogged off.

Hutchison turned his attention to injecting a little hustle into the meet over which a slight pall had hung after an early unfortunate occurrence.

Dave Steen, a field man from Vancouver, had just put the shot 54 feet to better his own Canadian record by four inches. Standing at the measuring line in indifference to warnings, he had caught a discus (flung by a girl competitor) across the top of his eyes. A nurse, watching in the stands, set a new track record coming to his aid.

She stopped the flow of blood, saw that Steen's nose, teeth and smile were badly disarranged and called an ambulance.

Don Burgess, an official who had tried to steer Steen out of the firing area, was still shaken.

"An inch closer and he might have lost an eye," said Burgess. "Two inches closer and he might have lost everything."

While attention was mainly focussed on Jerome a handful of spectators sat spellbound. Their eyes were caught by a athlete whose name they didn't know.

Roger Mercier (pronounced "Rojay Mer-se-ay") is 17, French-Canadian, dark, handsome and confident. Except for brief rest periods, he had been competing simultaneously in two strength-sapping events, the broad jump and the high jump.

Roger Has Natural Lean on Curves

He won both, set a record of 5' 10" in the high jump, and wasn't too pleased with his work. "I deed six feet, one inch in the high jump and 21' 6" in the broad jump two weeks ago at Bellingham," he said.

Much of his success, he said, is due his track coach—"hee's our physical education teacher"—at Squamish. Does Squamish High School have a track team? "Yes," he smiled. "Me. I guess I'm the only one who likes it."

I noticed that he walked with a peculiar gait. Had he hurt himself?

"No," he said. He stripped off his sweat pants, carefully took off his shoes and stockings. The second and third toes on his left foot were joined. He sat down, stretched out his legs.

"Look at them carefully," he said. A careful look wasn't necessary. His left leg was an inch and a half shorter than the right.

"I was born this way," he said. "They told me I would never walk properly and sometimes I don't—I sort of stagger. But it doesn't affect my running or jumping, you know."

He laughed. "When I run the 220," he said, "I have the advantage. Going around the turns I can lean naturally."

The wind came up, rested, and came up again as the senior 100 was called.

Jerome drew lane seven. Lynn Eves of Oregon State (nee Victoria) was in lane six. They stripped off sweat-suits, practiced starts and then settled into the blocks.

They took the set position. The gun sounded and Jerome came out like a man who has just sat on a bee.

After that it was zoom, zoom, ZOOM as Jerome went over the drive to passing gear. At the finish he was three strides ahead of Eves in 9.5, a new meet, B.C. and Canadian record.

Eves had nothing to be ashamed of. The night before the race he worked until 3 a.m. on a green chain in a local lumber mill.

ROOM TO SPARE

Clearing bar at 13 feet, Vancouver's Bob Watson had space to spare, but he failed to make it when bar was moved higher. Watson and Bob Reid of Vancouver tied at 13 feet in pole vault in Saturday's Times-Y Vancouver Island track and field championships, but Watson took victory because he went over on first try while Reid didn't make it until third attempt. INJURED SHOT-PUT ACE 'GOOD' AFTER SURGERY

In good condition at St Joseph's Hospital today is Dave Steen of Vancouver, 19-year-old shot-put star who is recovering from facial injuries received when he was struck in the face by a discus during the Vancouver Island track and field meet Saturday.

Steen, who underwent minor surgery Sunday for a broken nose and facial cuts, was rushed to hospital within minutes of having set a new Canadian shot-put record with his 54 foot toss.

He was watching officials measure his toss from a point inside the discus area when the 26 pound discus struck him.

'Impossible' 100 Run by Frank Budd

NEW YORK (AP).—Frank Budd smashed another "impossible" track barrier Saturday by running the 100-yard dash in 9.2 seconds for a world record.

Budd, a 20-year-old junior at Villanova, set the record during the U.S. National Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships. He had warmed up for the task by winning two qualifying heats in 9.4 seconds.

In the final, he edged teammate Paul Drayton by about a yard.

Ironically, Budd was not off to his usual bullet-like start.

He opened up at 25 yards and there was no catching him.

The wind was at 0.2 metres, well within the allowable limit of 2.0.

It was back in 1948 that Mel Patton first ran the 100-yard dash in 9.3. Since then, the mark has been equalled by eight other sprinters—Budd included. Another is Harry Jerome of Vancouver.

"I wasn't trying to set any world records," said Budd.

"But I knew I would have to step to beat a strong field like this. I couldn't have done it without this kind of competition."

Track officials hope to have the mighty midgets back for another meet in about six weeks.

That New Mark Could Fall Soon

Jerome Runs 100 in 9.5 To Set Canadian Record

By DOUG PEDEN

Don't be surprised if Harry Jerome's new Canadian 100-yard sprint record lasts only a week.

The lithe North Vancouver flash, co-holder of the world 100-metre mark and, until Saturday, part owner of the world 100-yard record of 9.3 seconds, sliced one-tenth of a second off the recognized Dominion standard in the Times-Y Vancouver Island track and field championships at Victoria High School.

Shortly after he had learned that Frank Budd has shattered the world century mark with a 9.2 clocking at New York, Jerome scampered smoothly through the 100-yard dash in 9.5 seconds, erasing a long-standing Canadian record shared by several runners.

Victoria's Lynn Eves, who has done 9.5 in the U.S. this year, was second in 9.8, and Frank Thompson, Vancouver, finished third in the feature event of the annual meet, co-sponsored by the Daily Times and the Y.M.W.C.A.

Three things suggest Jerome could trim another chunk off the record when he steps out next Saturday in the police games at Vancouver.

Jerome, who lost by a stride to Budd the previous weekend at Philadelphia, said after Saturday's race that he believes he is still about two weeks away from peak condition, indicating he expects to be slightly quicker at Vancouver. And he'll be clashing head-on with Jack Higgins of Puget Sound University, who equalled the former Canadian mark at the Vancouver relays in May and could be pushed to a greater effort.

Jerome may be sharing the national open record with Higgins, whose 9.5 clocking has not yet been ratified, but he has the Canadian native mark all to himself.

Although Harry appeared to come out of the starting blocks like a startled antelope and picked up a safe lead in the opening 20 yards, Jerome and Eves both said later that the first 40 yards of the track were extremely soft, making a fast start difficult. More solid footing could have resulted in a better time.

Harry 'Just Ran Through' Sprint

Jerome seemed neither pleased nor displeased by his record effort and wasn't surprised that Budd had smashed the world mark.

"He was about due," he commented after learning of the Villanova sprinter's 9.2 performance. "I think any of the three of us could have done it... under the right conditions."

Harry was referring to Budd and Dennis Johnson, of San Jose State, who also owns a close decision over Jerome this year.

Suffering from a slight cold, Jerome said the cold did not bother him and he did not make any special effort in the race. "I just ran through it," he said.

He didn't run in the 220, which was won by Eves in 22.4 with a comfortable margin over runner-up Dave McKay, of Vancouver.

Jerome's record-smasher was undoubtedly the highlight for the crowd of about 1,200 fans, but other athletes tossed in lots of talent and drama.

There was Dave Steen, smashing his own Canadian shot-put record by four inches with a heave of 54 feet and then being painfully injured when he was struck by a discus while watching officials measure his toss.

And there was 19-year-old Bob Watson, of Vancouver, beating his coach for the first time in winning the pole vault. Watson and Bob Reid, who holds the Canadian mark of 13 feet 10 1/2 inches, both cleared the bar at 13 feet and failed to scale the next height.

Watson was named winner since he made it on his first try while Reid went over on his third attempt.

"Bob has sure helped me," said Watson, who cleared 13 feet 6 inches after the event was finished. "He has brought me up from 11 feet in just over a year."

Veteran Ken Grant cracked a provincial mark with a leap of 6 feet 4 1/2 inches in the open high jump and then missed in a shot at the Canadian standard of 6 feet 6 inches.

Warrington Class of Juvenile Field

Scott Patterson, a smooth-striding, muscular youngster running for Vancouver Arctic Club, took both midget sprints. He equalled the Canadian record of 10.3 in the 100 and broke the B.C. mark of 23.5 with a 23.2 timing in the 220.

Victoria Vampires' John Warrington was the class of the juvenile field, taking the century in 10.1 and winning the 220 in 22.7.

Roger Mercier, a Squamish youngster who was competing simultaneously in the juvenile high and broad jumps, cracked a provincial mark in the high jump with a 5'10" leap and topped 20 feet by a half-inch to win the broad jump.

One other B.C. mark was established, when Vancouver's Frances Turone snipped one second off her own mark in the women's 880, running the distance in 2:36.6.

For excitement, it was hard to beat the open two-mile event, which wound up as a duel between Olympic Club teammates Vic Stephens and Don Tretheway.

Victoria's John Cliff was very much in the battle in the first mile and a half, leading at the halfway point by 40 yards, losing the lead to

She will enroll in Victoria College in fall.

GANGES — Residents of South Salt Spring Island will send a petition to Education Minister Leslie Peterson protesting amalgamation of North and South Island school areas.

The decision was made at a weekend meeting, called following the resignation of Trustee A. D. Dane from the board of Gulf Islands School District 64.

The board previously had approved amalgamation of the two school areas on the island, which meant trustees could be nominated and elected at large.

Mr. Dane resigned when the board rejected his request to re-open the question.

He claimed that about one-third of the students attending Salt Spring Elementary-Senior High School are from the southern area, and that the school board had assumed the right to amalgamate the two areas without consulting the voters concerned.

Residents at the meeting passed a vote of confidence in Mr. Dane, and arranged to hold a meeting Wednesday in Fulford Hall to elect a trustee to fill the board vacancy caused by his resignation.

Sullivan Team Wins

NANAIMO (CP)—Kimberley's Sullivan Mine team won the mine rescue competition over Howe Sound Mining Company in the provincial mine rescue and first aid championships here Saturday.

In the first aid competition, Metropolitan Ambulance Services of Vancouver defeated Kitimat fire department for the men's title, with Warfield Engineering No. 2, Trail, in third place.

Vancouver First Aid Ski Patrol won the women's first aid, with Nanaimo Nursing Division second.

Arts, Crafts To Replace Swim Classes

LANGFORD—Customary swim classes held annually by Langford and District Lions Club will be replaced this year by a program of arts and crafts and a summer-long fish derby.

It will be open to children of from six to 12 years. Prizes will be awarded and winning handicrafts will be displayed at Luxton fair Aug. 25 and 26.

Swim classes were dropped because there is no suitable place in the district for instruction.

4 Canadian Cigarettes "Safer" Than Before (but 12 have more tar)

Doctors say tar and nicotine in cigarette smoke are harmful — and Canadian cigarettes have changed in the past two years. Some offer more protection than others! In July Reader's Digest the latest laboratory report on 18 different brands tells you how much they have changed.

12 cigarettes (including many filter-tips) now have more tar... and one has a new low-low tar content. How does your brand stack up? Before you buy another package read "Facts We're Not Told About Filter-Tips" — one of 36 articles in July Reader's Digest. Get your copy today — at any newsstand.

Move Over! Students in Action

DUNCAN — Students at Cowichan High School here want a school band badly enough to pay $900 for it.

The money, raised through their own efforts during the past year, has been given to the school board with the stipulation that it be used for establishment of a band.

Mrs. Isabel Tarlton, board chairman, told trustees that since the pupils are anxious to have a musical program at the school, it is up to the school board to try to have some sort of band work started by September.

A. D. Jones, inspector of schools, told the board there would be difficulty in finding a qualified bandmaster, but members decided to get the best person available in order that a start can be made.

DUNCAN — Players in Duncan junior basketball leagues raised $425 in their annual canvass of homes here.

Compton Heads Recreation At Campbell R.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Ray Compton has been elected president of the Campbell River Recreation Association.

George Albright was named vice-president, Mrs. Joan Whitmore secretary, and Dave Yeaton treasurer.

Board members are Bruce Saunders, Don Rutherford, Tom Richardson, James Smith, Bob Mawson, Mrs. Laurie Denley, Ken Hasanen and Frank Stapley.

Proceeds will be used mainly for supplies. About 300 youngsters play in the leagues.

NANAIMO — Progress payment of $104,038.16 has been made by the provincial government toward construction of the new Nanaimo Regional Hospital, begun in February and scheduled for completion during summer of 1962.

Cost will be over $3,400,000.

DUNCAN — Cowichan District branch of the Navy League of Canada has re-elected Don Baker as president.

Allen Stewart, commanding officer of the Admiral Main-guy Sea Cadet Corps, reported a strength of 42, with an allocation of 60 members.

A number of the cadets are to be guests of the navy when HMCS Longueville visits Cowichan Bay, Tuesday.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

BEVERLY HILLS—Before a lot of gossips distort the story, I'd better confess how I was seen taking Marilyn Monroe home at a most unusual hour.

The home I refer to was a bungalow deep in the dark, shadowy grounds of the Beverly Hills Hotel. At night it's spooky and, of course, with MM around, romantic.

This was at the time MM had flown to Las Vegas to hear Frank Sinatra at the Sands, and had sat at the ring-side applauding.

I galloped breathlessly to the phone to dictate a story about their friendship—after seeing them tete-a-tete in the lounge following the show—and I even hinted at some dramatic developments.

OFF TO BED
And after I rushed back to the lounge, there were some dramatic developments already in evidence:

MM had toddled off to bed. Frankie was still sitting there talking with some other friends. I fear I was more romantic than they were.

But let's talk about us—MM and me.

Looking sleepy, Marilyn got off a plane at L.A. International Airport which had just brought her from Las Vegas—and I waited at the ramp for her.

I'M SO POPULAR
As I helped Marilyn across the street toward a taxi, several young fellows must have recognized me, for they began yelling and whistling. I had not known I was so popular in California.

Marilyn and I were soon rolling back to Beverly Hills in the cab—just she and I and the driver—and her press agent, Pat Newcomb.

The cab driver was on the earle and I tried to keep the conversation discreet. The dialogue went like this:

ME: Oh, but I'm sleepy.
MM: You should be. It's your bedtime.

ME: My sinuses are bothering me.
MM: Do you have beautiful sinuses, too?

ME (ignoring that): Wasn't Frank wonderful? You must be a Sinatra fan, too!
ME: One of the first. Joey Bishop was good, too.

MM: He's so much more attractive alive than on TV. I've only seen him on the Jack Paar show.

ME: What's your recollection of the picture you did with Jack Paar and your impression of Jack?

MM (smiling): We did a love scene on a piano bench. My impression is that he took up most of the piano bench.

PAT NEWCOMB: Where is this cab driver taking us?
MM: Maybe he doesn't know the way.

CAB DRIVER: Well, here we are.
MM: I don't know why I'm so sleepy.
ME: Like I said, because 4 o'clock is your bedtime.
MM: Four o'clock in the afternoon!

ME: Yes, when you're not working, you're sleeping at 4 p.m. and it's sort of unusual for you to be out at this hour.

'BUSINESS?'
For you see, it was 4 in the afternoon when I took her home, and she must have been up that day by noon. Both MM and Miss Newcomb tried to pay the cab fare, but I wouldn't allow it, though I wondered later whether the Internal Revenue boys will let me say that a taxi ride with Marilyn Monroe is "business."

Later I got a message from Marilyn that my story about the dates she'd had with Frank was inaccurate on two points. First, she'd had only a couple of dates with Frank—not five or six.

CHAMPAGNE
Second: I had reported she sat at the ringside holding her highball glass on the railing. "It was not a highball glass," protested Marilyn. "I was drinking champagne on the rocks and it was a champagne glass."

EMILY LIPSON
I got a message from Marilyn that my story about the dates she'd had with Frank was inaccurate on two points. First, she'd had only a couple of dates with Frank—not five or six.

CHAMPAGNE
Second: I had reported she sat at the ringside holding her highball glass on the railing. "It was not a highball glass," protested Marilyn. "I was drinking champagne on the rocks and it was a champagne glass."

"DON'T PRINT THAT!"

Studies show that tornadoes strike most often at the wide wheat fields of Kansas. The corn fields of Iowa are second and the prairies of Texas are third. Arkansas, Illinois and Missouri are next on the tornado list. Oklahoma gets tornadoes and the fierce little twisters also may strike in Nebraska, Mississippi, Alabama, Ohio, Indiana, Georgia, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

How does a hurricane blow itself out?

The tremendous energy of the great storm is in its wild winds and turbulent air currents. The winds rush in a column of light rising air at the centre, spiralling as they go. Regions of light air and dense air, low pressure and high pressure within the storm system are trying to adjust.

If the hurricane takes a path over the sea, it may take a long time to adjust the conflicts of warring air masses within it. But eventually the different air masses mix, their differences are settled and the storm calms down. We say that it blows itself out.

When the hurricane takes a path over the land, it meets all sorts of solid objects. Its drafts winds are opposed by trees, hills and houses, and much of its energy is spent in trying to blow them out of the way. For this reason, a hurricane blows itself out more quickly when it travels over the land.

Eichmann Admits Signing Orders

(CP from Reuters-AP)

JERUSALEM — Adolf Eichmann today for the first time made a qualified admission that he had any connection with signing orders for Jewish executions.

As Eichmann testified in his own defence his lawyer asked him whether he had ever been concerned with the task of signing orders for Jewish executions.

"If you mean this, to transmit an order issued by higher authority onwards, and to sign the order of transmission of such instructions, then my reply is yes," Eichmann replied.

RELATED ORDERS

He said he had transmitted Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler's orders for "special treatment" of Jews to local police authorities.

Earlier, Eichmann had described himself as feeling like Pontius Pilate when Nazi "popes" eagerly pressed forward their "final solution" of the Jewish problem at the 1942 Wannsee meeting in Berlin.

Eichmann reached back into Christian history to describe his thoughts of almost 20 years ago when the decision was reached to exterminate the Jews.

All three Israeli judges leaned forward in rapt attention as Eichmann compared himself to the Roman governor who allowed the crucifixion of Christ.

Eichmann in explaining his reaction said:

"Here I felt a certain solace and appeasement, considering I had done my utmost despite my relatively low rank of lieutenant-colonel and I had thought of a 'final solution' which was not repellent or hideous but which was practical and feasible."

"I did my best to bring order into all the turmoil in deportations. My unflinching efforts could be seen in the Radom plan and later in the Madagascar plan for shipping the Jews to the island of Madagascar."

"I could say to myself that in spite of my determination, I had to toe the line. What was done was not my doing. I had the feeling of Pontius Pilate. I felt I was not guilty. What was laid down was done by the elite, the popes of the regime."

In the United Kingdom, 11 people work in mining, manufacturing and building for every one in agriculture.

City Teenager Saved By Eagle-Eyed Guard

Immigrant Hero Of Lake Incident

A young German immigrant is the hero in a near-fatal drowning incident at Beaver Lake Sunday.

On duty as a lifeguard at 2:30 p.m. while hundreds of Victorians splashed and sunned, Hans Rudwaleit, 1116 McClure, spotted a swimmer in difficulty near the centre of the lake.

Rudwaleit reached the drowning man within seconds and applied artificial respiration as soon as they returned to shore.

Released: Saanich firemen attended with a resuscitator and took James Simpson, 18, of 3017 Quadra, to St. Joseph's Hospital where the young man was examined and released.

A native of Tilsit, Germany, the lifeguard is 21 years old and has been employed as a guard for the Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee since late March this year.

He came to Victoria 18 months ago.

Railway Underpass Widened

A narrow, crooked underpass on Helmcken Road under the E & N Railway track is being widened from its present 19 feet to about 41 feet.

Dobson and Marcus Construction Co. Ltd. of Nanaimo is doing the job for the E & N Railway and provincial highways department, and expects to have it finished within two months.

Railway service will not be interrupted, even though a new steel span will be installed.

CONCRETE DECK

The span, being built at Yarrow's Ltd., will carry a concrete deck and conventional ties set in gravel ballast.

Falsework now is in place to support the track while work goes ahead on new abutments.

The 41-foot width is between abutments, which are at right angles to the track. The roadway, which approaches at an angle there, cannot take full advantage of the distance.

Highways department officials are considering relocating a small bridge on the road to give a more favorable approach to the underpass.

Publicity Bureau Advised to Plug Beacon Hill Park

Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau today was told a "pull up its socks" in publicizing Beacon Hill Park.

The barbed criticism was thrown at the bureau by city parks committee after it learned complaints had been lodged by visiting Vancouverites who could not find the picnic areas or toilets in the park.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren said many busloads—with parties running up to 200 persons—are visiting the park this summer on one-day excursions using the government ferries.

"Well, the publicity bureau should get a strong protest from this committee," said chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney.

Sunday Trade Held Illegal For Laundries

Supreme Court Hits Coin-Run Premises

Coin laundry operators are liable to charges under the Lord's Day Act if they remain open on Sunday, according to a decision handed down today by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Two local operators of the automatic laundries protested the decision.

Gordon Carter, spokesman for a laundry firm that operates one of the automatic facilities, pointed out there could be repercussions in other areas of the automatic vending machine business, which operates without attendants, usually on a round-the-clock basis.

WHY LAUNDRIES?

"Why pick on coin laundries?" he asked.

By closing Sundays the Supreme Court is cutting down the days of operation on which "we might make any money," he said.

"We are not selling anything; it's a service," said the wife of another operator, Mrs. W. I. Shillington.

"If they are going to close us, are they going to close the juke boxes and cigarette machines, too?"

"Sunday is a big day. Some people can't get to do their laundry any other day. In some areas coin-operated machines are the only ones available. I think they are a necessity."

"People want the service—they want to be clean," she said, pointing out that a United States court battle resolved in favor of the operators on this basis.

The Canadian ruling upheld that of a decision made by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

The court's judgment followed a test appeal case to determine whether the growing number of automatic laundries may remain open Sunday's even if no one is on hand to supervise them.

Veteran Coastal Engineer Dies In City at 72

James Reid, 72, marine engineer with the CPR and B.C. Coast Steamships since 1921, died Sunday night in hospital here.

Born in Paisley, Scotland, he entered CPR service in 1921 as third engineer on Ss Montague, and sailed in the Empress of Australia before transferring to the BCCSS.

Mr. Reid was a member of the Masonic lodge. The widow, Agnes, is at the family home, 1117 Faithful Street. Funeral arrangements will be announced by McCall's.

Scorched and molten metal, and fragments of wings and tail assembly, are all that are left of a Martin Mars water bomber which crashed Friday west of Parksville killing its crew of four.

An RCMP officer who led the investigating party to the scene Saturday said there was "nothing left" of the 42-ton flying boat which could drop up to 35 tons of water on a fire at one time.

STREAMS OF METAL

"Everything was burned up," he said. "The plane had hit a steep hillside, and there were streams of what had been molten metal pouring down to the tail section."

The four-engine plane had been called from its Sprat Lake base shortly before 3 p.m. to douse a fire which had broken out on Northwest Bay division logging operations of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

CARTWHEELED

It scooped up water to fill its tanks in a run across Nanos Bay, then headed for the fire. It went through the smoke without dropping its load of water, then failed to clear a hill beyond. One wingtip struck a tree, and the navy blue and red ship "cartwheeled" to its death in the forest.

Killed were the pilot, W. G. Richmond, of Sidney; Jack V.

Speech on Budget By Argue Tonight

Last week's federal budget will be the topic of CCF House of Commons leader Hazen Argue, who speaks here tonight.

Mr. Argue, touring western Canada on his campaign for the leadership of the New Party, will speak at 8 p.m. in Woodsworth Hall, 721 Courtney.

He will speak in Nanaimo Tuesday.

Scorched and molten metal, and fragments of wings and tail assembly, are all that are left of a Martin Mars water bomber which crashed Friday west of Parksville killing its crew of four.

An RCMP officer who led the investigating party to the scene Saturday said there was "nothing left" of the 42-ton flying boat which could drop up to 35 tons of water on a fire at one time.

TAIL 'JOINED'

The tail assembly had broken loose and fallen away a short distance down the slope, but was "joined" to the burned wreckage by streams of metal, he said.

"We found one body outside the aircraft, but the others were in the cockpit area," he said. "All were badly burned and they must have died instantly."

An inquest was convened at the MB-PR office on the operation Saturday afternoon, then was adjourned to July 4 at 7:30 p.m. in Parksville municipal hall. All evidence will be heard at that time.

Three officials of the transport department probed the wreckage in their investigation of the tragedy.

Forest Industries Flying Tankers Ltd., company which operated the Mars for the five B.C. logging firms which joined forces on the project, has not yet made a decision on resumption of the Mars program, according to Ernest G. Shorter, president.

"Nothing will be decided until all the investigations have been made and all the reports are in," he said.

OWNS THREE MORE

The company owns three other Mars flying boats, sister ships of the doomed Marianas Mars, which are in good shape at Patricia Bay Airport. Conversion as a water carrying aircraft is, however, an extensive job, and could not be done in time to make one of them available this year.

"We were pleased with the way the plane had performed this year," Mr. Shorter said. "We were working out methods of putting water on a fire, and I was told it did a wonderful job for the Tahsis Company on the west coast over a week ago. Company officials gave it sole credit for extinguishing a fire in an inaccessible spot."

The four aircraft, built for the U.S. Navy, were bought from a war surplus dealer for about $500,000. Conversion of the first took most of the winter of 1959-60.

Oak Bay, Saanich Fight 'Mountain' Fire

Fighting a brush fire on Mount Tolmie Sunday took the combined forces of Oak Bay and Saanich as the blaze spread some four acres across the municipalities' common border. Firemen were called at 5:45 p.m. and worked until 11 p.m. before controlling the blaze.

Rated as the most serious so far this year in Greater Victoria, the fire consumed clumps of bush, moss and grass on the rocky east slope of the mountain. Firemen said nearby houses were not endangered. (Ryan Bros. Photo.)

MONTÉ ROBERTS

"Is it hot enough for you?"

This is a question which can be asked with impunity, and the reasonable assumption of receiving a reasonable answer, almost anywhere in the world.

Except in this, the Fairest City of Them All. In this, the Fairest City of Them All, it is almost impossible to get a firm answer to the popular heat-wave question, "Is it hot enough for you?"

Not so in London, Eng., or London, Ont. Not so in Paris, France, or Paris, Arkansas. Not so in Vancouver, B.C., or Vancouver, Wash. Or in Berlin (West or East Germany, take your choice), or Kitchener, Ont. (no choice there).

Even in Omsk, Tomsk, Petruska and Moscow itself, behind the Iron Curtain, where one is careful to check on the current exchange rates before exchanging the time of day, one can expect an answer to the question: "Is it hot enough for you?"

The answer might be aye, nay, si, non, yup, or nyet. But the respondent has no hesitation in answering the query.

Things are vastly different in this The Fairest City of Them All.

Ask a citizen: "Is it hot enough for you," and in all conscience he will have to reply:

"This will depend on the given instance of the given situation where this question was put to me."

"What I mean is I require a definition of the term 'Is it hot enough' on the basis of location of the thermometer. "No person," the citizen is duty bound to say, "may answer your question without being fully cognizant of the mercury analysis."

"At this very instant," the citizen will say, "the official reading on Gonzales Heights is 66. By no means," he will add, "hot enough for me."

"But the downtown temperature, according to Radio Station 'A' is 74."

"And this is just hot enough for me."

"On the other hand, Radio Station 'B' says the downtown temperature is 88."

"Much too hot for me."

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Preliminary foundation work on Victoria Building Co-operative Union's new labor headquarters has been finished.

Major construction on the $150,000 building will begin in the fall, provided a current capital drive is successful.

The union seeks a minimum $50,000, or about $40,000 more than what is on hand, before replacing present headquarters of the district's organized labor at 615 Pandora.

A recurrent controversy involving complaints against the number of cats at a Duchess Street home was referred to a special committee of officials today by city health committee.

The officials will report on existing authority for dealing with the complaints and possible changes in regulations.

Heavy damage resulted to two cars when they collided at Bay and Quadra Streets Saturday at 9:55 p.m.

Lena Polkinghorne, a passenger in one of the cars, was released from the Royal Jubilee Hospital after treatment for head injuries and a nose bleed.

Police said one car was driven by John J. Polkinghorne, of 710 Lampson Street, and the other by Greta Heaton, 2622 Quadra Street.

Victoria Lions Club today was given approval by city parks committee to stage a "donkey baseball" exhibition in Royal Athletic Park towards the end of August.

Edward William Steele, of 1021 Cook Street, was fined $250 and restricted to business driving only, after pleading guilty in city police court today to a charge of impaired driving.

The Saanich Astrophysical Observatory recorded a "faint earthquake" in the Kamloops area early Sunday night.

An official said the tremor probably wasn't felt any more than 10 miles away.

He said these earth tremors are common west of the coast range but that this is the first one in a long time reported from the Okanagan or Kamloops area.

A prayer and healing study meeting will be held on Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the Cathedral Memorial Hall.

A meeting of the Federal Superannuates will be held in the YMCA banquet room on Wednesday at 2 p.m.

A panel discussion on multiple sclerosis will be conducted by Dr. R. B. Bourdillon at the monthly meeting of the Victoria Multiple Sclerosis Society on Thursday at 8 p.m. in the War Amps Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue. Robert Ferguson of the National Trust Co. will speak to the meeting on the subject, "Thoughts and Circumstances."

Winners of the weekly tournament of the Victoria Unit, American Contract Bridge League, were: first, O. Lees; second, Walter Allen; third, Phil Hagel and George Morgan; fourth, Laura Tingley and Molly Collins; fifth, Irene Abels and Isabel Artlett; and sixth, Alma Halliday and Lou Duncan.

Mr. Mooney said he had hopes that Saanich council would exempt a golf course from taxation "because I feel sure they are conscious of the need for this facility."

Ambulance Run Delays Denied

Victoria Ambulance Service operator J. D. Carlow today denied ambulance runs to hospital are delayed so drivers can ascertain who will pay the cost.

The suggestion had been made in a complaint to city health committee.

"We have never turned down a patient for lack of money," he told the committee. "In fact, the opposite is the case. I could paper this committee room with unpaid bills."

TUESDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Kiwanis Club: Noon, Empress Hotel. Robert W. Keyes will speak on "Management Audit."

Victoria North Kiwanis: 6:15 p.m., Cordova Bay Restaurant. Committee Night.

ESQUIMALT NAVAL SHIP

Sussexvale, Ste. Therese, Stettler, Antigonish, Bencon Hill, New Glasgow and Jonquiere return Friday at 10 p.m. Assiniboine, Skeena, Margaree return July 13, 11 a.m.

THOSE CLOUDS WERE REALLY ONLY TEASING

Farmers and gardeners are going to have to wait a while before they get some rain.

Relief for dried up fields and lawns seemed just a few hours away this morning as Sunday night's winds brought in a likely looking batch of clouds.

By mid-morning, however, most of the clouds had departed, leaving Victorians with their usual blue-sky-and-sunshine diet.

Rain is not expected, says weatherman William Mackie, except in the occasional "isolated sprinkle." A small craft warning continues for Juan de Fuca Strait. Winds will be fairly strong from the west.

Maximum temperature today and Tuesday is expected to be between 62 and 70 degrees.

Throngs Jam B.C.'s Newest Camping Site

Cars jammed the black-topped approach road to Bamber Park Sunday as thousands visited the B.C. government's new camping and picnic grounds adjoining a large man-made beach below the Malahat Highway.

Many motorists turned back when they saw that parking room was scarce. But those who came early made full use of the 50 campsites, 35 picnic tables and the concrete beach house.

The 69-acre park, donated by the B.C. Cement Co., was officially opened Saturday afternoon by Recreation Minister Earle Westwood in the presence of hundreds of beach picnickers and about 70 official guests.

FINE EXAMPLE

"The company has set a fine example," said Mr. Westwood as he pulled aside two flags to display an aluminum plaque decorated with colored enamel figures.

Earlier, the official guests attended a reception and luncheon at the nearby home of R. E. Haskins, vice-president of B.C. Cement Co.

PRINCESS GUEST

Among the guests was Princess Jennie Chikmatoff, daughter of R. P. Butchart, founder of the company.

The fine sandy beach is an accumulation of years of waste sand from the cement works. A top layer of sand and gravel was brought in by the parks branch.

All the campsites have been full for the past four weekends, and on Friday night the demand was so great that some people slept out in the open on picnic tables.

It is understood there is a move afoot to expand the RCN school of music to include trainees for bands of all three armed services.

Before joining the Guards Band, Capt. Gayfer was director of music of the band of the First Canadian Infantry Brigade, and before that was with the band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

AN EARLY LINEUP

of parents and children, all eager that the children learn how to swim, was seen at the Kinsmen Gorge Park on Saturday. More than 200 children, aged eight to 12, registered for swimming classes being held at the park from July 3 to August 11 by the Victoria Kinettes. There are still openings for beginners and juniors which may be filled by registering on Friday at 10 a.m. in the park. Parents must accompany children. Fee is $2.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Accessorize This Summer
With Wide Leather Belts

By PENNY SAVER

Shop windows all over Victoria are filled now with the cool, crisp cottons that you are wearing so much this warm June. And what could be more elegant and fashionably startling than to accessorize them with a touch of winter?

I refer of course to the wide crushed leatherette belts. Ones Penny saw come in black, white, mauve or sage green. The simplest white dress will become dramatic with a touch of sage green highlighting waist. Belts are 2½ inches wide, and low priced at $1.59.

Another very chic fashion accessory Penny found is a white jacket sweater styled with navy blue trim on round neckline and buttoned front. With a slim or pleated skirt of white or navy blue, sweater would complete a striking ensemble. Sweater is made of orlon, and available in sizes 14 to 20. It is priced at $9.95.

Are you planning to undertake that most difficult of propositions, a train or motor trip with small infant along? Penny found an item that is bound to make travelling easier.

You have probably seen pre-moistened towlettes that come in tiny plastic-lined packages, wonderful for washing hands and face when washroom is far away. These are now available with antiseptic added, designed to keep baby clean and happy after changing. These would ensure that your vacation was a holiday, not an endurance test. Packages of eight are 49c; 96c for 18.

Same drug store is offering Canadian-made ball point pens, in green or grey, with retractable points, at a mere five cents each. A good time to stock up on the ever diminishing family supply!

If you would like to know where Penny shopped today, give her a call at EV 2-3131.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"The Jack and ten of clubs were missing last week from my deck of washable playing cards."

DEAR ABBY...

It's a Sure Bet, Honey!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What future is there for a young man, 24, who lives to gamble? It started out to be a hobby, but now it is his full-time occupation. He has ideas that are out of this world when it comes to making a fortune gambling. He is good-looking, well-liked, and educated. He says he has studied the odds, and he gambles "scientifically," so he can never lose. He claims he has read extensively on "the psychology of gambling." So far he has been lucky. But do you think a girl can be happy with a man who makes his living this way?

GAMBLER'S GIRL: DEAR GIRL: The "psychology of gambling" is not very complicated. It is the science of trying to get something for nothing. Don't bet on a gambler. You are a cinch to lose.

DEAR ABBY: Why does a mere wife think she has special privileges? Everyone knows "Till death do us part" is old-fashioned. If a wife can't hold her husband, why doesn't she get out?

I was married and had one child, aged 4. I fell in love with another man. We worked together. He was married in name only. His wife was older than he was. He married young and didn't know the score.

We planned to get divorces and marry. He wanted to wait. I did not, so I divorced my husband. My boy friend stalled. So I phoned his wife and let her know that I was in the picture. I wrote her letters telling her everything. I also parked outside her house, wanting to talk to her in person, but she ignored me. My boy friend started feeling sorry for his wife and told me to lay off. I refused. Then he finally gave me the old excuse about his wife being sickly, and his children needing him. My home is broken up because I believed his lies, so why should I give him up without a fight? I owe her nothing.

THE OTHER WOMAN.

This Reducing Plan Really Works

"The Naran Plan is what I have been hoping for. I was just about convinced that I was fat for life when a friend told me about your plan. To my surprise, I began to get results at the end of the first week and have been losing ever since. I am sure that I can now keep my weight where I want it."—W. Montgomery, Montreal, P.Q.

Overweight people generally fall into two classes, those who have tried to reduce and failed and those who have never tried at all. You do not have to be in either group. Make up your mind that you are no longer going to suffer the discomfort and embarrassment of being overweight. You are not far from a drug store, walk over and ask for the Naran Plan and begin today to lose weight while eating three meals a day. It is that simple, after you have lost weight you will wonder why you didn't do it sooner.

DEAR WOMAN: There is no man to "fight" for. He has given you up. To paraphrase your own words, "If a woman can't steal another's husband, why doesn't she lay off?" Look for a man in your league.

DEAR ABBY: A bunch of catty women wrote in asking you if their neighbor, who went to barber college to learn how to cut her husband's hair, carried a hot lunch to his place of work every day instead of packing him a sandwich, never disagreed or argued with him, and always called him "Sweetheart" and "Baby," was the ideal wife, or were the rest of them just "average slob." And your answer, Dear Abby, didn't sound like you. Tell me the truth, do you write your own column every day? Or were you on vacation?

DEAR FAN: I write my own column every day. And I never go on vacation. If I said that woman was anything but an ideal wife, I must have had a geranium in my cranium. Forgive me?

What's bothering you? For a personal reply, write to Abby, 205 Park Road, Burlingame, Calif. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IRENE GILBERT
of Ireland

In but a few hours time, from cutting to hemming, you can be wearing this charming Irene Gilbert design. With only three basic pattern pieces, the front bodice, skirt panel and sleeves are cut in one. The wide square neckline is filled in with extensions cut onto the back bodice. From these corresponding body measurements select the one size best for you. Our sizing is comparable to ready-to-wear.

Size	Bust	Waist	Hips	Length
8	33	23	34	16¼ inches
10	34	24	35	16½ inches
12	35	25	36	16¾ inches
14	36½	26½	37½	17 inches
16	38	28	39	17¼ inches
18	40	30	41	17½ inches

*From nape of neck to waist.
Size 12 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch fabric for dress.

To order Pattern No. S-387, state size, send $1.25. For air mail handling, add 25c. For Pattern Books No. 17 and No. 18, send $1.25 for each. Address SPADEA, Box 993, G.P.O., Dept. CVX-5, New York 1, N.Y.

Spadea Patterns are the only patterns using ready-to-wear sizes.

Please allow two weeks for delivery.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Have Physical Exam
BEFORE, Not AFTER

The idea that physical examinations are necessary only when the patient has pain or does not feel well seems to me to be as old-fashioned and out-moded as high button shoes. The growing medical attitude today is toward preventive physical examinations.

There is no way of calculating how many lives could have been saved and how much suffering avoided if the victims had had periodic check-ups. Many serious diseases are curable in the early

Earn Emblems

Eight Guides from 15th Victoria Company were presented with "religion and life" emblems by Canon R. E. H. Howell at a special service in Christ Church Memorial Hall, Sunday morning. Emblems take between six months to one year to earn with course and examination usually being set by the Guide's minister. Receiving emblems were Susan Forrest, Carol Fuller, Dorothy Gatz, Sandra Hammond, Christine Kaye, Catherine Moutray, Diane Wilson and Vivian Zuck.

In a similar ceremony in James Bay Cathedral Church school last week the following Guides of 8th Victoria Company received emblems: Dora Pickering, Ann Pickering and Brenda Howell.

Island Temple No. 8, Pythian Sisters, Tuesday at 8 p.m., K of P Hall. Members to bring refreshments for "pot luck" supper.

CLIMBERS DODGE DEATH

Wild Avalanche Ride

PARKDALE, Ore. (AP)—A veteran Oregon mountain climber and his son rode an avalanche 2,000 feet down the northeast slopes of Mount Hood, Sunday.

Colin Chisolm, 50, Lake Oswego, Ore., suffered under-terminated back injuries in the accident. His son, Douglas, 22, suffered a number of cuts, but otherwise was all right.

They were members of a Mazama Club climbing party which had reached the summit of Mount Hood this morning.

They were returning to Cooper Spur via the north climbing route and were about 500 yards below the summit when Chisolm and his son began crossing—a sheer ice wall. Their ice axes pulled loose.

Dr. T. F. Lathrop, of Oregon City, described the accident this way:

"We were still in the chute, a climbing area just below the summit."

"We were the next to last party. We saw them start to slide. Then the whole mountain came loose with them."

"They went down and down. We saw them go into one crevasse and thought that was it."

"Then they rode out in the churning snow and just kept riding it down. We saw them disappear into another crevasse and we knew they would not come out. But they did and rolled to a stop."

Caught in Grinder

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Betty Risch, 31, of Vancouver, Friday lost her right hand when she was caught in a meat grinder in a large grocery store. Mrs. Risch was putting meat through the machine when the accident occurred.

enjoy the New
for Theatres, Concerts, TVI

Now, more and more people who aren't really hard of hearing are discovering a new world of listening pleasure with the new Zenith Signet hearing instrument.

Just as glasses help you read better—the new Signet lets you hear voices and other sounds more distinctly without straining. Wear the Signet wherever you don't want to miss a thing—at plays, concerts, meetings or at home with TV.

A miniature masterpiece, the Signet weighs only 1/2 of an ounce... fits snugly behind the ear. It's powered by a miniaturized transistor circuit to bring you famous Zenith "Living Sound" performance. Has a volume control and separate on-off switch for your added convenience.

Why not try the new Signet soon and see what a world of difference it makes in your listening pleasure. See it at your Zenith dealer—he's listed in the "Yellow Pages" under Hearing Aids.

Zenith—the World's Finest Line of Quality Hearing Aids. From $50 to $250. Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price. All sold with 10-Day Money-Back Guarantee.

EATON'S own
Berkley Appliances

Superb Steamwatcher Kettle

EATON'S own Berkley Steamwatcher is a high-speed multi-purpose electric kettle which can be used for boiling water, as a sickroom vaporizer, as a handy humidifier by means of a special vapour control switch. Automatic thermostat shuts off current if kettle boils dry and automatically resets it when cooled. In gleaming chromium-plate finish with wrap-around handle to protect knuckles from hot steam. Detachable cord included. 2-qt. capacity. EATON Price, each 14⁵⁰

Berkley De Luxe Kettle

Smart oval shape electric kettle in gleaming chromium-plate finish with wrap-around handle. It is so built that heating element is right in the water, thus the water, and not the kettle, is heated FIRST. Also features automatic shut-off and automatic reset control. Black metal base. Detachable cord included. EATON Price, each 10.95

Berkley Standard Kettle

Similar in construction and shape as Berkley De Luxe kettle (above) with exception that cord is attached. EATON Price, each 9.50

CENTRE SERVES NEEDS OF 60,000

PLANNING STARTED FOUR YEARS AGO

Massive Research Turned Dream Into Reality

Saanich's new Town and Country Shopping Centre, largest on Vancouver Island, is "tailor made" to serve the needs of half the population of southern Vancouver Island.

Before even a hole was dug or a brick laid, before even the land was bought, an intensive survey was carried out to check on the suitability of the site, what stores and services were needed, the number of potential customers and where they live.

The survey showed that 30,000 people live within five minutes' driving time of the site, 60,000 within 12 minutes. Population of southern Vancouver Island is some 120,000 persons.

Just what stores and services were needed within that customer area was carefully researched and from these facts the centre gradually took shape.

It was back in early 1958 when Dominion Construction Co. Ltd. became interested in the old Saanich municipal yard site.

Working quietly, the company obtained options on 11 adjoining houses and approached Saanich council.

Strong opposition came from another firm, a grocery organization which planned a smaller development on the site, but Dominion Construction won out.

The surveys showed that, initially, a community centre was needed in the area.

This is Stage II in shopping centres. Smallest centres are neighborhood centres with about 100,000 square feet of floor space, and lastly there is the regional centre, like the Oakridge Centre in Vancouver.

The Town and Country Centre will expand as the area expands, ultimately becoming a regional centre.

Basically, the centre is a department store for the area, but instead of having the different departments stacked one above another in a multi-story building, the departments (separate stores, really) are spread out in an L-shape design.

At its opening, the Town and Country Centre has one or two vacant stores. In their own way, these empty stores are a tribute to the developing company, Dominion Construction.

The company didn't have to leave them empty—it has refused would-be tenants who wanted to rent the space.

But the survey clearly showed that only certain types of business would prosper in the centre. And until the right types of businesses come along, the stores will remain empty.

Tenants in the Town and Country Centre at present include:

The largest Safeway supermarket in British Columbia; a Peter's Ice Cream parlor and distribution centre; Agaw Surpass family shoe store; a large Woolworth's variety store; the first White Spot drive-in restaurant on Vancouver Island; a branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank; Germaine's hairdressing salon; a Marshall Wells hardware store; the Town 'n' Country Bakery; a Cunningham drug store, the largest in B.C.

ply shop; the Town 'n' Country barber shop; a branch of Frank A. Martin Agencies; the Town 'n' Country sports centre; New Method Loomer bowling centre; Reitman's women's and girls' clothing store; Bata Shoe Store; and Hollywood Shoe Repairs.

The shopping centre as it stands today is not the ultimate planned. Eventually it is expected the centre will cost some $2,500,000.

A shopping mall some 200 feet long separates the ice cream parlor from the drug store. As more stores are needed in future, the mall will be extended and the stores grouped around it.

One of the big advantages of shopping at the Town and Country Centre is parking.

There are spaces for 800 cars at present and there is plenty of room for more if needed. The whole centre has been designed to be flexible to meet future needs.

Despite the efficiency of the centre, beauty is present everywhere.

Natural rock walls, Japanese maples, flowering shrubs, brilliant mosaic tile walls, acres of glass are everywhere. The Town and Country Centre puts the fun and relaxation back into shopping.

New Shopping Centre Monument Immigrant Weathered Depression

The new Town and Country shopping centre is a living, busy monument to a British immigrant who reached Vancouver in 1908.

It is only one of many similar monuments to Charles Bentall, now 79, "Mr. Dominion Construction."

Charles Bentall, a structural engineer, reached Vancouver when it was 22 years old. He, himself, was 26.

Through the years Vancouver and Mr. Bentall's firm have grown up, expanded, prospered. But in the beginning, Charles Bentall had nothing to do with Dominion Construction Co. Ltd.

While Mr. Bentall worked for the firm of J. Coughlan & Sons, designing and erecting such buildings as the Sun Tower and the Holden Building in Vancouver, the first steps toward the creation of Dominion Construction were being taken.

The company was incorporated with the Northwest Trust Company holding a third of the shares; A. J. Welch, E. B. Morgan and J. M. Patullo held another one-third between them, and T. J. Madlen held another third.

One of the company's first acts was to buy out the Builders' Supply Company which Mr. Madlen owned. This took place in 1911.

In the following year Mr. Bentall was given the position of assistant general manager. The First World War hit the fledgling company hard, and in 1914 Mr. Welch sold his shares to Patullo. Two months later, in May, T. J. Madlen also sold his shares.

In 1916 Charles Bentall became general manager of the company, a position he was to hold for 39 years, until his retirement in 1955.

When Mr. Bentall was 38, in September, 1920, he and John Tucker, by purchase, became sole owners of the Dominion Construction Company. Mr.

Bentall was appointed president.

But the young company still showed no real signs of its prosperous future. In the yearly reports for 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925 and 1926 the fateful words "It was agreed that no dividend be paid," appear.

The following year, 1927, business took an upswing and Dominion Construction Co. formed the New Building Finance Company as a subsidiary.

In October, 1929, the great depression began in Canada. Many firms toppled, directors went bankrupt. But Dominion Construction was in a sound position to weather the storm.

In one way the depression was a blessing to the still young company. Unable to find work in the Vancouver area, the company looked farther afield.

Buildings were erected in the Okanagan Valley and on Vancouver Island. And the company's operations were extended into Alberta.

In Calgary the firm entered a new area of business.

In association with General Motors Products, the company erected a building and leased it to GM on a 10-year basis.

Part of the financing for the construction was arranged through the New Building Finance Company. Today the company owns the building.

The list of new buildings and construction projects undertaken by the company over the years is closely tied to the expansion of Vancouver, B.C. and Alberta.

A sugar beet plant at Picture Butte, 20 miles north of Lethbridge; Vancouver's First Avenue Viaduct; Kelowna General Hospital, are among the many projects carried through by the company.

Charles Bentall served as president of the rapidly expanding company for 35 years, until 1955, when he was made Chairman of the Board of Directors. His son, H. Clark Bentall, succeeded him as president.

Today, Charles Bentall can look with pride at his company. It has grown as his adopted hometown has grown.

Subsidiary or associated companies include Angus Apartments Ltd., Bentall Construction Co. Ltd., Bentall Electrical Co. Ltd., Bentall Engineering Corporation Ltd., B.C. Millwork Products Ltd., Edmonton Millwork Ltd., and Western Truck & Equipment Co. Ltd.

Our congratulations to the builders of the new Town 'n' Country Shopping Centre. We are proud to have had a share in its construction.

Bird's-Eye View of New Undertaking

This aerial view of Saanich, immediately north of the city boundary plainly shows the location and area of the new Town and Country shopping centre, marked in white. Douglas Street runs vertically through the middle of the photo and the Trans-Canada Highway curves off to the left immediately opposite the shopping centre. Just above that is Carey Road and Douglas Street continues on past Swan Lake, dotted area, where Saanich council might build a civic centre. Photo was taken from a Vancouver Island Helicopters' craft. Elk Lake and Mount Newton are in the background.

Panorama of New Design for Shopping

This wide-angle view of the new Town and Country shopping centre shows all the stores. From left they are the White Spot, The Toronto-Dominion Bank, Bapco Paint Supply, New Method Laundry, Germaine's hairdressing salon, Woolworth's, Bata Shoes, Reitman's women's and girls' clothing, Agnew Surpass shoe store, Peter's ice cream parlor, Cunningham Drug, Town and Country Sports Centre, Just Rite Photos, The Candy Box, the Town and Country Bakery, Marshall Wells hardware and the huge Safeway store. Hidden behind the Safeway store in this photograph is Loomer Lanes 5-pin bowling centre. Several stores in the shopping centre are empty, but leases are being negotiated with different businesses. The tree-shaded mall—first in Greater Victoria—is situated between Peter's ice cream parlor and the modern Cunningham drug store. The Town 'n Country Barber Shop and Hollywood Shoe Repair are in the Mall.

Victoria Provided Him With Sun and Success

Victoria was just too much for Edmontonian Walter Cullimore when he visited Vancouver Island 25 years ago.

After his vacation in Victoria, Walter returned to Edmonton, the city of his birth, but he cherished a hope that some day he could return for good.

It took only three more Edmonton winters to make up Walter Cullimore's mind.

Together with his wife and family and their belongings he moved holus-bolus to Victoria 22 years ago.

For the first eight years in this area he managed stores for other people but in 1947 he managed to open his own store, his first.

The idea behind his store was simple—import the finest

WALTER CULLIMORE

English toffees and candies and sell them at the lowest possible prices. He called his store "The Candy Box."

This store is on Douglas Street, near Fisgard. He has since opened a second store, at 737 Fort Street, and his third store is part of the Town and Country shopping centre.

This tastefully decorated and unusual store stocks the fine candy which has become his trademark, together with a wide selection of quality gifts marketed on the same basis as his candy—import the best and sell it as low as possible.

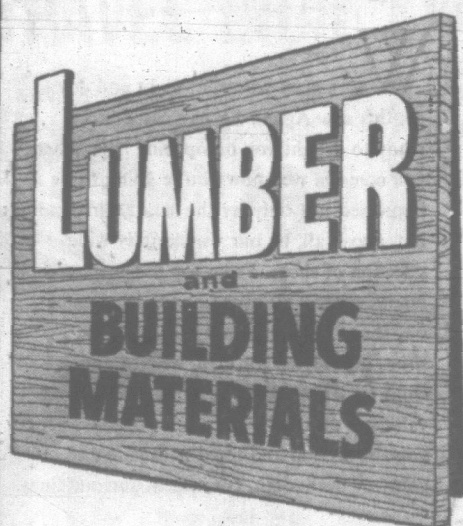

A full range of Court's Hallmark gift cards for every occasion completed the stock.

Walter Cullimore is a friendly man and he has carefully picked a friendly, efficient staff for his new store.

New Safeway Biggest

Big is the only way to describe the new Safeway store in the Town and Country shopping centre.

It's the biggest in British Columbia for instance. It has the biggest and widest range of foods.

And it specializes in selling food in big packages.

It's perhaps the only store in Canada that regularly stocks 105-ounce cans of tomatoes, spaghetti, peas, beans, spinach, ketchup, olives, cream corn and fruit cocktail.

And 128-ounce jars of salad dressing and pickles, gallon tins of imported Italian olive oil and 48-ounce cans of soup.

But size isn't everything and size isn't the whole story about the new Safeway.

It features a gourmet section including Italian lasagna and lumache; English jams; Italian cookies; guava jelly; mango chutney; Italian tomato paste for real pizza pies; Scottish oatcakes, German sauerkraut, Bavarian mushrooms, Oregon honeycomb and Dutch rusks and rye bread. All display shelves are kept down to shoulder level so a customer can look clear across the football-field sized store.

Other highlights are: Ultra-modern "spatnik" lighting fixtures highlight the bakery counter.

The 700-pound mosaic Safeway emblem over the main door.

"Magic carpet" doors both in and out.

Special ice creams like ice milk for people on diets and Spumoni. Spumoni is Italian ice cream with chocolate on the outside, then pistachio and in the centre is rum-flavored ice cream filled with fruits and nuts.

And frozen cakes, ready to eat without cooking. They'll keep for ages in the refrigerator.

The building covers about 22,000 square feet. It is the largest single store in the whole centre.

Manager Jack Fidler and a highly-trained staff have spent weeks in the store, preparing for the big opening day.

And in the tradition of Safeway stores, there'll be bargains galore for shoppers.

Our Congratulations

TOWN 'N COUNTRY SHOPPING CENTRE

We are proud to have contributed to furthering the development of the Municipality of Saanich through our share in the construction of this great project.

Drawing Shows Completed Centre in Use

This artist's conception of the Town and Country shopping centre shows what photographs can't—how the centre will look with all the extensive landscaping completed. Selected flowers, shrubs and trees will be planted throughout the area, where possible, to add to the beauty of the area, and add to the pleasure of shopping.

Four Ideal Days!

The last four days in June are ideal for photographers who need to stock up on film.

From June 27 through June 30 the new Jus-Rite photo store in the Town and Country shopping centre is making a special money-saving offer.

All black and white film bought from the new store in those four days will be developed and printed free of charge, and all color film will be developed without cost.

But the dividends will continue through the years—prices for black and white developing and printing are about a third cheaper than other firms.

Jus-Rite Photos Ltd., a locally-owned firm, has its own

photo finishing plant, and can charge less for work because no discount needs to be given to agents.

The new store is just the second opened by Jus-Rite Photos. The first store, 716 Yates Street, was opened in 1924 by Thomas A. Waterworth.

Photo finishing—developing and printing—was actually the foundation of the store. It is only recently that the portrait department and retail camera and equipment department have been opened.

Present manager of Jus-Rite Photos is Drew Waterworth, son of the founder. He has been with the company for 29 years.

Other key personnel have also had lengthy service with the company. Roy Strable, portrait photographer, has been with the firm for 16 years and Herbert Shaw, manager of the photo finishing department has been 18 years with the company.

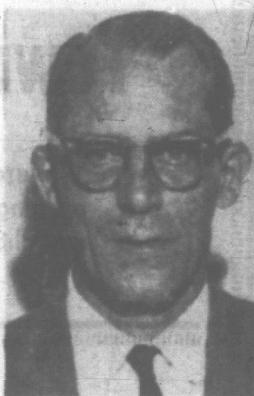

The new store in the Town and Country centre will carry a full range of black-and-white and color films, and cameras at all prices ranging from a $6.95 box camera to the most expensive one a customer wants.

Cameras, accessories, projectors, slide viewers, cases, bags, boxes, flashguns, strobe lights, movie cameras, all will be in stock. Automatic cameras will be featured.

A Land Polaroid camera which produces a finished picture in only 10 seconds will be given away to some lucky customer during the first four days.

These incredible cameras do their own developing and printing in just 10 seconds and are almost as simple to use as a box camera.

Cog In Huge Wheel

Many things about the Town and Country shopping centre are the "biggest"—biggest in Victoria, biggest on Vancouver Island, biggest in British Columbia, biggest in Canada.

But only one of the stores in the centre—and one of the smaller stores at that—can claim to be part of the world's biggest shoe manufacturing and selling organization.

Bata shoes, managed by Mike Melenka, is part of the worldwide Bata shoe group with international headquarters in London, England.

The organization's undisputed slogan sums it up—"More people the world over wear Bata shoes than any other brand."

But in spite of the international operations of the organization, only Canadian-made shoes will be sold through the store.

The entire stock is manufactured in Batavia, Ont., the firm's Canadian headquarters.

In keeping with the company's diversified operations, a full range of footwear, from work boots to high-fashion slippers will be stocked.

Still Lots to Buy For Only '5 and 10'

The 5 and 10 cent store that Frank Woolworth opened June 21, 1879 in Lancaster, Penn., and the chain of stores he opened in later years have all disappeared.

Sure, the Woolworth stores are thriving, but the 10-cent price limit has been increased to about $100.

To that extent only, the 5 and 10 cent stores are gone. High prices and the high cost of living have buried the traditional title.

But there are still thousands of 5 and 10 cent items to be found in Woolworth stores, including the new branch opening in the Town and Country shopping centre in Saanich.

More than 20,000 items are packed into the store, ranging from pins to clothes for the whole family.

This new store is one of a number the Woolworth organization is building throughout Canada. It is the largest store being built this year west of Winnipeg.

And it will feature an ultra-modern and hygienic lunch counter.

New manager for the new store is Stan Cooper who joined the Woolworth chain in Vancouver in 1937. He has managed stores in Weyburn, Sask., Nelson and Prince Rupert, B.C.

A member of the Rotary Club for the past 10 years, Mr. Cooper is an active curler and sport fisherman. Assistant manager is John Shaw, who has been employed for some time in the Douglas Street Woolworth store.

The store, the 275th in Canada, has 15,500 square feet of floor space and more than a quarter mile of counters. It is completely air-conditioned.

Opening of the store comes almost 50 years after the F. W. Woolworth chain came to Victoria.

Frank Woolworth, the man who first thought of stocking a store with items costing less than 10 cents, is dead, but his spirit lives on.

It lives on in the tradition of value which Stan Cooper is helping continue.

Blend, Jiggle Please

Every color of the rainbow and thousands that nature never produced can be found at the new Town and Country shopping centre.

A prismatic blending machine in the Bapco Paint Supply store can produce innumerable tints in all types of paint both for inside and outside use.

"We can match paint to any color the customer likes," manager Jack Okell says. "If someone wants us to match a scarf, or a pair of pants we can do it."

The blending service is free of charge, but Bapco service doesn't end there.

An interior decorator is on staff and is available free of charge to help customers plan color schemes for their homes or stores.

And a jiggling paint mixing machine makes sure that a customer's paint is thoroughly mixed, saving him that chore.

Another big advantage is that the store is stocked and will be kept stocked with fresh paints.

The parent company, the British America Paint Co. Ltd., is one of Victoria's largest industries. Its factory and head office located on Victoria's Inner Harbor have been a familiar sight to Victorians for almost 90 years.

Growing steadily from an output of nine tons of paint a day, Bapco is now recognized as the largest paint manufacturer west of Toronto and north of San Francisco.

This new store is an offshoot of the company's first store which began operations almost 40 years ago at 719 Yates Street.

Mr. Okell joined Bapco 25 years ago and after thorough training in all phases of paint manufacturing he joined the Yates Street store in 1937.

During the Second World War, Jack served as a lieutenant with the Royal Canadian Artillery from 1941 to 1946.

He was assistant manager of the Yates Street store until appointment to handle the new location.

ROTARY OVEN

Fresh Baked Goodies

Victoria's most modern retail bakery is part of the new Town and Country shopping centre.

A full range of baked foods, from bread to fancy pastries, and cakes will be produced from the gleaming rotary oven at the rear of the Town and Country Bakery.

Costing $4,000, the oven features shelves which rotate to ensure even baking.

The store will be managed by William H. Flucker, who has spent almost 20 years in the baking business, near Edinburgh, Scotland, and the last five years as chief pastry baker in one of Victoria's leading bake shops.

Assisting him will be Eddie Winterburn, well-known in Victoria for his bread. Eddie, who had his own bakery for some years, will be responsible for baking bread in the store.

All goods will be fresh made each day and displayed in specially-constructed showcases.

Modern Stores Get Finishing Touches

The new Town and Country shopping centre in Saanich, just north of the city boundary, was a hive of activity last week as workers put the finishing touches to the modern stores and tenants moved their stock in, ready for the big opening day. Parking for some 800 cars is provided on all-weather blacktop.

There's Room at the Top When They Start at Bottom

Behind the successful promotion and construction of Saanich's huge Town and Country Shopping Centre is a family business which is one of the largest of its kind in Canada.

But unlike a lot of family businesses, the boss' son starts at the bottom of the ladder and has to work his own way up to the top.

Take H. Clark Benthall, the president of Dominion Construction Co. Ltd. Mr. Benthall's father, Charles, was president of the company until 1955.

Clark Benthall started with the company in 1938 as a lowly draughtsman, after graduating as a Bachelor of Arts and Science. Later he obtained his engineering degree.

Over the next 22 years he worked his way up from being a draughtsman to an estimator, project engineer, project manager, assistant manager and vice-president, until his father retired in 1955.

Robert G. Benthall, executive vice-president of the company and brother of the president, worked for the company for some years during the summer months while he attended university.

On his graduation with the degrees of B.A.Sc. and P.Eng., he started work full time.

His first work with Dominion Construction was as expediter in the construction of a transmitter station on Lulu Island for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Through the years he rose to project engineer, project manager, Okanagan branch manager until 1950 when he returned to Vancouver to join the executive staff.

Robert Benthall is the man most responsible for the Town and Country Centre. It was his "baby" from the first approaches to landowners, through negotiations with Saanich council, to the finished shopping centre.

The tradition of "in-service training" extends beyond the Benthall family to the company's key employees.

Frank Worster, F.C.I.S., vice-president and secretary, in charge of the financial work of the Canada-wide organization, joined as an accountant in 1942.

He later held the position of assistant secretary and was promoted to secretary before being appointed a senior executive of the company.

Mr. Worster's earlier training in chartered accountancy enabled him to enter the lumber and construction industries before joining Dominion Construction.

D. G. McIntosh, B.A.Sc., P. Eng., is now chief engineer of the company which he joined in 1945.

After graduating from the University of British Columbia he became a member of the staff of the Dominion Bridge Company in Vancouver and Lachine, Que.

He was later engaged by Defence Industries Ltd. for the designing of munition plants and for other wartime industries.

After the war Mr. McIntosh was responsible for the structural design of the original Chalk River Atomic Energy plant.

He joined Dominion Construction as a structural engineer and later became project engineer, until his appointment to the executive.

A. Pederson, general superintendent of the company, reached Edmonton in 1923 as an immigrant from Denmark, where he served his apprenticeship in carpentry, drafting and estimating.

Mr. Pederson worked in the construction industry on the prairies for three years before he joined Dominion Construction in Vancouver.

His skill won him the post of foreman carpenter and during the Second World War he became superintendent of wartime construction projects.

M. S. Thompson, B.A.Sc., P.Eng., has been employed by the company for 12 years. He is a graduate in civil engineering from the UBC.

H. CLARK BENTHALL

ROBERT G. BENTHALL
... project his "baby"

He was chief estimator for the company's operations for some time and has been project engineer in charge of the Town and Country centre since construction began.

It has been his responsibility to co-ordinate the design and actual construction of the entire project and to finalize all construction details and requirements with the tenants in the shopping centre.

John Pawluk, building superintendent throughout the entire construction period of the shopping centre, has been with Dominion Construction for five years.

He directed the activities of all foremen and tradesmen and subcontractors on the job.

For the period of the actual construction of the centre, Mr. Pawluk has lived in Victoria.

FRIEND TO HOUSEWIFE

The housewife has a special friend in the Town and Country shopping centre.

Matter of fact, it is another housewife—Mrs. F. J. D. Spohn, who is advertising and promotion manager of the centre.

And being a housewife as well as a businesswoman, Mrs. Spohn has a unique appreciation of both sides of the shopping centre business.

Mrs. Spohn has had extensive experience in the advertising field, including radio work. She has worked with the advertising departments of the Shell Oil Co. of Canada and a number of Canada-wide chain stores.

She also works in close conjunction with the Merchants' Associations of a number of similar shopping centres, uniquely able to represent the shopper's problems where it can do the most good.

"The trend towards urban living in the postwar period has developed the need for decentralization of retail stores," she says. "Today the housewife finds it most convenient and desirable to drive to the neighborhood shopping centre for her major purchases."

It's not hard to guess where Mrs. Spohn does her own shopping.

Smiles and Goodies Lure Hungry Crowds

Backed by an international reputation, Nat Bailey's White Spot drive-in restaurant chain has established in Victoria.

Famous for its "SMILE" cards, the restaurant has already opened to a land office business. On the extreme north end of the new Town and Country shopping centre, the brightly-lit restaurant is drawing crowds night and day.

Popular specials on the White Spot menu include Chicken Pickin's, deep fried chicken in a nest of French fries; Chicken in Straw, half a spring chicken from the White Spot ranch;

Fish and Chips, fried in special batter; the three-decker Clubhouse sandwich including cold sliced chicken, bacon, tomatoes, lettuce, mayonnaise and White Spot's own Chili sauce.

And the hamburgers! They range from just plain hamburger through cheese burgers, mushroom burgers and the deluxe burger to the Giant with a double portion of meat.

Single-Store Plan Kept Growing

A young Victoria real estate and development company laid the business foundations for the huge Town and Country shopping centre.

Frank A. Martin Agencies Ltd. started with the idea of building a food market in a triangle of land within the present boundaries of the Town and Country centre, about 3½ years ago.

But the company realized the potential value of the area for an integrated shopping centre and it was decided to make attempts to buy the Saanich municipal yard site.

Tentative inquiries were made through Arthur Ash, who was then reeve of Saanich, and later through Reeve George Chatterton.

"In development of the centre, itself, we were extremely fortunate in having made contact with Dominion Construction Co. Ltd., who are responsible for the design, engineering and ultimate success of the centre," Frank Martin says.

"We worked in close co-operation with R. G. Bentall, vice-president of Dominion Construction which is one of the finest engineering and development companies in Canada."

"We are proud to be associated with them and feel proud to have played our small part in enticing this great organization to become interested in the development of commercial properties on Vancouver Island.

"We feel that this present development is just a forerunner of future commercial and industrial developments by Dominion Construction."

Mr. Martin's faith in the Town and Country centre is shown by expansion of his company to a new branch in the centre.

A suite of large, ultra-modern offices in the centre will provide convenience and service to clients, with ample free parking.

The firm's present offices, at 1114 Blanshard Street, are being renovated and modernized and will be kept open for the convenience of downtown clients.

Frank A. Martin Agencies has developed into the most modern, efficient real estate service on Vancouver Island. When its present expansion plans are completed it will be the largest firm of its kind on the Island.

Its present services include sales of residential and commercial property, insurance, mortgage facilities, property management and property development.

The firm was started some six years ago in the offices at 1114 Blanshard Street.

At that time there was only one salesman on staff—Len Wardle, who is still with the company. For the first year almost all the firm's business was in the national housing field.

The national housing construction department is still an important part of the company's activities under the jurisdiction of Len Wardle and Lew Mollett who act as building consultants.

This section of the firm works closely with the Lipsey Rolston Development Company. One of the most important developments has been the North Ridge Terrace subdivision, one of the finest on the Island.

This subdivision is completely sewered, has hard-top roads, curbs, gutters, street lighting and piped-in television.

After its first year of operations, Frank A. Martin Agencies was formed into a limited company and joined the Victoria Real Estate Board, the B.C. Association of Real Estate Boards and the Cana-

Customer Always Right Young Barber's Creed

The Town and Country Barber Shop has a creed that is not always easy to find: "Give the customer what he wants."

"Many customers find that no matter what they tell their barber when they sit in the chair, they still end up with the type of haircut the barber thinks best," young Bill Nesbitt, proprietor of the shop, says.

"Almost everyone who asks for a trim ends up with what is really a medium haircut. We plan to find out just what the customer wants and we will give it to him."

Mr. Nesbitt, 26, will be assisted by George Dowler, an English-trained master barber.

The Town and Country Barber Shop is Mr. Nesbitt's first shop of his own, but he has worked in shopping centres before.

BILL NESBITT
... aims to please

He took his apprenticeship at the Empress Hotel and then spent 12 months at an outlying shopping centre, managing a barber shop for another man. "I took it for the experience," he says, "and it was quite an experience."

"There is a wonderful atmosphere of co-operation among businessmen in a shopping centre. Each will go out of his way to help the other."

"There's nothing like it downtown. Take one block of merchants, for instance. Few, if any, are actual competitors, but they still don't help each other out the way businessmen in a shopping centre do."

The barber shop is opening with only two chairs in operation, but there is room there for another two chairs.

Sledge Hammers To Draining Racks

It's a foregone conclusion. It stands to reason that Marshall-Wells, the fastest-expanding chain of hardware stores in British Columbia, will have a store in the new Town and Country shopping centre.

And there is a Marshall-Wells store, with popular Harry Ward, 954 Linkleas, as manager.

Like all Marshall-Wells stores in shopping areas throughout the province, the Town and Country shopping centre store will feature a full line of hardware and household goods, ranging from sledge hammers to dish draining racks.

Stainless steel cutlery, fine china, pottery, tools, nails, screws, gardening accessories and flashlights are among the wide range of merchandise in the new store.

Marshall-Wells stores are well-known for the quality of their goods and their competitive prices.

Alleys Through History Survived Persecution

It's as old as civilization, an indication of his state of grace. Even in North America the game was not without its troubles. Bowling was introduced to New York by the early Dutch settlers in 1623 with nine pins set up in a diamond shape.

First lane was a bed of clay but eventually players standardized on a single board, 12 to 19 inches wide.

Bowling pins have been found in Egyptian tombs, dating as far back as 5,200 years before Christ's birth. It has been found in countries as different as Egypt, Switzerland and the old Polynesian islands of the South Seas.

Through history the game has been banned by four English kings—Henry III, Edward III, Richard II and Edward IV—and actively supported by at least one—Henry V—who bowled a mean game between battles.

For a time in Germany, around the 12th century, the game became tremendously popular when a churchgoer's skill in hitting a pin with a rounded pebble was taken as centre, the drugstore is modern, airy and cool, despite huge plate glass windows surrounding the front and part-way down one side.

Qualified druggists on staff will be able to fill prescriptions quickly and accurately.

Featured stock includes a wide range of imported United States cigarettes at highly competitive prices and more than 200 different plastic model kits ranging from cars to trains, to ships to planes.

Designed for today's streamlined shopping, the store still features seats for customers who want to rest a while. And immediately outside the store three large maple trees cast cool shade in the shopping centre's mall.

The store acts as a collection agency for the B.C. Telephone Co.

Opening day will be celebrated with free prizes for lucky customers, coupons for a valuable draw, and bargains galore.

The old guessing game, "How many beans in the bottle?" has been updated for the store opening with a huge glass jar of vitamin capsules.

The two customers who come closest to estimating the number of capsules in the jar will win valuable radios and souvenir dolls.

For the convenience of customers the store will not only sell appliances such as film projectors, vaporizers and baby scales, they will be available for rent for low cost.

The store is a treasure house of merchandise, a far greater range of goods than any other drugstore in B.C. It even stocks lawn coasters.

What are they? Go see Vic Hartley—he'll explain.

BILL OLIVER
... lord of lanes

operates five-pin bowling centres. All equipment is built by Double Diamond, another all-Canadian firm.

Loomer Lanes is the largest organization of its type in North America and has about 100 new bowling centres under construction.

The bowling centre at the Town and Country shopping centre is the most modern in the world, with automatic pin-setters; electronic foul line lights and professional quality lanes.

The lanes are specially made from maple and pine, sanded and honed to perfect levels. They feature underground ball returns to avoid distracting bowlers.

In charge of the new bowling centre is popular Bill Oliver, former manager of Victoria Curling Club. Bowling is just another facet of Bill's sports career.

He was picked for the 1928 Olympics by Percy Williams, well-known sprinter; he played both Canadian and English rugby, outdoor lacrosse, he curls and bowls.

In line with Loomer Lanes' established policy, the new bowling centre will offer some startling "extras."

One is a children's playroom equipped with toys, television and a qualified nurse during the busy periods.

Bill Oliver plans a full range of competitions for bowlers of all ages, in line with the firm's policy of helping beginners.

Pee Wee leagues will be organized for youngsters from six years to 13. They'll bowl each Saturday morning from 9:30 a.m. And the youngsters will be given professional training and instruction in how to figure handicaps, averages, and how to elect their own executive.

Some 120 youngsters are expected to take part in the Pee Wee leagues and application blanks should be filled in immediately. They are available at the bowling centre.

Special trophies will be awarded each week to the "Pee Wee Bowler of the Week," chosen on the basis of sportsmanship, good attendance and improvement in his game.

At the end of the year all the Pee Wee bowlers of the week will be invited to a banquet and the Pee Wee bowler of the year will be chosen.

Junior leagues, for bowlers in high schools—13 to 17 years—are also being organized for afternoon play. Like the youngsters, if they need it, the company will provide free instruction.

The women haven't been forgotten. Special learners' classes will be held each day at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., beginning July 3. The nurse-supervised playroom for children will also be at their service.

Even "ladies in waiting" aren't forgotten. Special classes will be arranged for them. The lessons will run for three weeks, with 2½ hours instruction one day a week.

And for organizations which would like to hold their meetings and end the afternoon or night with bowling, Bill Oliver has a special meeting room set aside.

Loomer Lanes will also handle club funds in special bank accounts if necessary.

The bowling centre will be open from 9 a.m. to midnight, and later if necessary to accommodate leagues.

Applications to join in the organized activities offered should be made to Bill Oliver, EV 6-5101 or EV 4-7790.

And, if bowlers need any more incentive, a pile of free gifts will be given away during the bowling centre's opening week or so.

Germaine's Up-to-Date

Victoria's most tastefully designed and up-to-date hairdressing salon is Germaine's. From the soft color scheme of mauve, champagne and white to the delicate white wrought iron filigree which screens one area from another, the decor is Parisian.

Special shampoo basins have been imported from the United States and all furnishings and appliances will match the pastel color scheme.

Restful pink lighting, a special air conditioning system, and special design award-winning lighting fixtures are used.

Germaine, the manageress, specializes in styling and hair coloring as does Rikki of Vancouver, who is joining the staff.

Bound to be highly popular with the clientele is Marion, who spent three years as a hairdressing instructor before agreeing to join the staff.

Soft music, Parisian decor, soft pastel colors, cool white iron filigree and the special air conditioning system combine to make Germaine's a MUST.

WHITE SPOT COMES TO VICTORIA

"White Spot's new Victoria drive-in, our first on the Island, is the biggest and most important step we've taken in more than thirty-three years.

"Our first Dining Room opened on Vancouver's Granville Street back in 1927. Since then, the name 'White Spot' has meant 'delicious food' to Vancouverites and visitors alike. Food that's always superbly cooked, and efficiently served by friendly people, in pleasant surroundings. We have built an enviable reputation over the years, and we have grown with Greater Vancouver. Today on the Lower Mainland there are two White Spot Dining Rooms, ten drive-in restaurants, and seven coffee shops!

"We are pledged to please Victorians in just the same way. Our new drive-in is as modern and attractive, as well equipped and staffed, as our know-how and experience could make it. So all that's needed now is lots of customers, for we know the proof of the pudding is in the eating! Come on in soon—you'll get a big welcome at White Spot."

Ultra-Modern Bank—Light, Airy, Cool

It's been a long way around for Gordon Barrett, manager of the new branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank in the Town and Country shopping centre.

Born in a house next door to Erskine Church on Harriet Road, less than three blocks from his branch, Mr. Barrett worked in Victoria, Lake Cowichan and Vancouver, before returning to his old district.

He obtained his schooling at Mt. Tolmie School and graduated from Mount View High School in 1945. He joined the Toronto-Dominion Bank in 1946.

Two years later he was transferred to Lake Cowichan and in 1949 he was sent to the bank's main office in Vancouver. He returned to Victoria in 1956.

First he was accountant at the Douglas-Johnson Streets branch of the bank, but in 1959 he became accountant at the main city office at Yates and Broad.

Mrs. Barrett is the former Erica Hamilton, also a native-born Victorian. They have two children, Ronald, 7, and Winona, 5.

Mr. Barrett is a past president of St. Mark's AYP, a past president of the Camosun Toastmasters' Club 757, and at present is treasurer of the Gordon Head elementary PTA and treasurer of the Saanich Shopping Centre Society—the association of businessmen who have stores in the Town and Country centre.

This ultra-modern bank—light, airy and cool—is fully equipped to handle all banking services. Among its facilities are a large vault, safety deposit boxes and a night depository. The services offered include:

Savings, personal chequeing and current accounts; banking by mail; travellers' cheques; money orders and drafts; money transfers; foreign exchange; securities bought and sold; safekeeping; agreement for sale collections; business loans and personal "life insured" loans.

This new branch of "The Bank" is the 54th in British Columbia, and the sixth in future development of Saanich and Greater Victoria. It is an excellent

The Toronto-Dominion Bank years. Gordon Barrett and his staff are continuing that friendly service through the reputation.

Boost For Clogs

Dutch-born Bill Pruim is an enthusiastic booster for clogs—the traditional Dutch wooden shoe.

"They are wonderful for farmers," he says. "When you have to work in the wet they don't rot like leather shoes and they don't leak, either—they keep your feet dry."

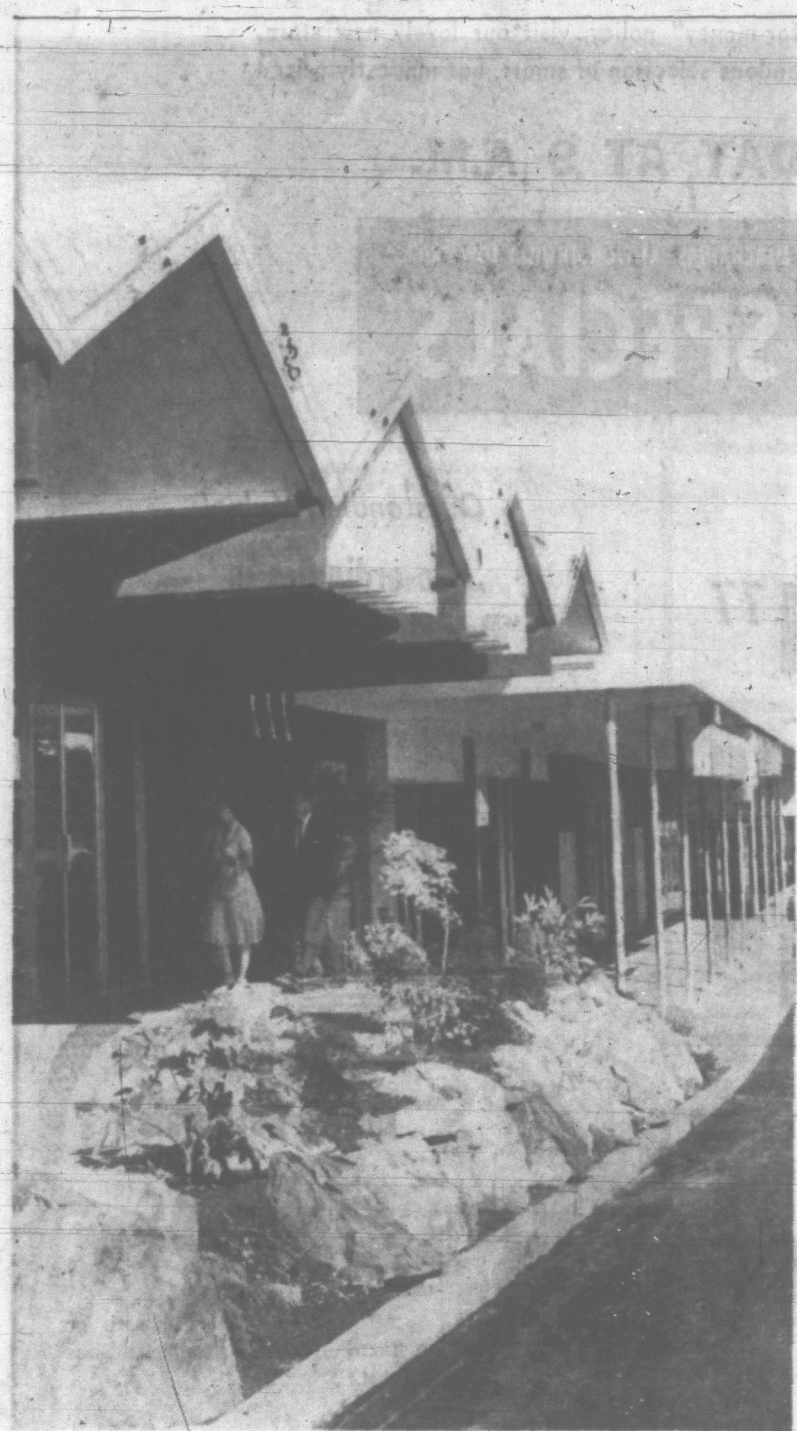

"And another thing. For home gardeners they are ideal. If you're gardening and your shoes are muddy and the phone rings you track up the floors with mud."

"But with clogs you just slip them off at the door and leave them there."

Bill Pruim, continental-trained in making custom leather shoes to order, and with 12-months Canadian factory experience behind him, is owner of the Hollywood Shoe Repair store on the tree-lined mall in the Town and Country shopping centre.

He offers a one-day repair service for major repairs and carries a full range of polishes, laces and other accessories.

And just in case anyone wants to try clogs in the farmyard or the garden, he has a few pairs of them for sale. They'd make terrific ivy planters for a den.

Gabled Canopy Adds Grace

The gabled sidewalk canopy at the White Spot restaurant in the foreground, together with natural stone wall and shrubs and trees are an attractive introduction to the Town and Country shopping centre for southbound shoppers. Architects who designed the huge centre were successful in their aim to avoid a flat, uninteresting front to the centre, using stone, mosaic tile, hand-split shingles and large areas of glass.

One Stop Only

Leisure and pleasure are two of the keynotes in the design of the Town and Country shopping centre.

With ample free parking available, broad, canopied sidewalk and a wide range of tastefully designed stores, the centre offers real "one-stop shopping."

For the housewife in a hurry, the Town and Country centre has been designed efficiently to save her time, and money, but the housewife with time to spare will find everything she needs to make shopping a pleasure.

There's the White Spot restaurant for meals, the lunch counter in Woolworths and the miniature automat in Loomer Lanes.

For a quick pick-me-up there's Peter's Ice Cream parlor with the biggest variety of ice cream on the Island.

And if mother wants to end up with a relaxing game of fivepins without the kids getting in her hair, Loomer Lanes has a special playroom for children with toys and TV and a qualified nurse on tap during the day.

Congratulations

Tree-shaded mall in the Town and Country shopping centre is the shape of things to come. As the centre expands, future building will be concentrated along the mall, extending its length. Full-grown ornamental trees were transplanted to provide welcome shade for tired shoppers. Despite mall proposals for downtown Victoria, this is the first mall in the area. It is flanked at the entrance by Peter's Ice Cream parlor on one side and Cunningham's drug store on the other.

Opening of Sports Centre Fulfils Cherished Dream

The secret is the identity of one of the two partners.

The not-so-secret one is H. Ross Owen, a Canadian Scottish vet of the Second World War, who has spent most of his life in Victoria apart from a few years back east in Vancouver.

Ross has spent the past 10 years as a commercial traveller on the Island and is an enthusiastic hunter, fisherman and Scuba diver.

But his partner is the problem—he wants his identity to remain secret except to customers who visit the modern sports centre.

But this much is known about him:

● He is a veteran who served with the RCN, Atlantic Command, during the Second World War.

● He is well-known in Victoria sporting circles.

● He is married with a grown son.

● He has lived in Victoria since 1940, with a few years away for war service.

● Opening of the sports store is the fulfilment of a long-cherished dream shared by the two men.

Their aim is to make the Town and Country Sports Centre into a social centre for Island sportsmen — a place where they can gather, tell tales and spend a sociable hour.

All major lines of sports equipment will be carried by the partners but they plan to meet any demand for special equipment.

First-class service to sportsmen is the aim of the two men.

3635 Douglas Street

We are pleased to announce the opening of a new Branch of The Toronto-Dominion Bank in the attractive, new Town and Country Shopping Centre at 3635 Douglas Street.

The manager and staff extend a cordial invitation to you and your family to visit the branch Tuesday to Friday, 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. They look forward to the pleasure of meeting you and there will be gifts for the children.

You will like the courtesy of our staff.
You will like the helpfulness. You will be glad you opened an account with The Toronto-Dominion.

The manager of this new Branch, Mr. G. J. (Gordie) Barrett, is a native son who entered the service of The Bank in 1946 at the Douglas and Johnson Streets Branch. He has had fifteen years of banking experience in various Vancouver Island Branches, in Vancouver and in Victoria. You will find him particularly well qualified to handle the banking business of the people of this flourishing district. He is looking forward to meeting you.

TOP SECRET PROCESS UNDER STUDY

VICTORIA FIRM LOOKS TO FUTURE

Instant Laundry Comes Next

Laundry washed in seconds? It may not be very far away in the future.

Matter of fact, it is being done right now on an experimental basis. And once it is ready for commercial use, New Method Laundries and Cleaners Ltd. will bring this revolutionary technique to Victoria.

In the meantime, New Method will continue to give the first-class service which has always been the keynote of its business.

And this top quality service will be easily available to shoppers at the Town and Country centre.

For the convenience of customers entering the store with bundles of clothes, and leaving with bundles of cleaned and pressed clothes, automatic doors have been installed.

The weight of the customer (and his laundry) on the mats each side of the two doors cause them to swing wide open.

The "wash-in seconds" technique is not just an isolated development. New Method is associated with a group of similar cleaning firms in North America.

The companies in the group subsidize a research program to develop new and efficient ways to clean clothes and press them. The new washing technique is just one of a number of top secret developments under study.

While the emphasis with New Method is on up-to-date methods and equipment, the company itself is the oldest in Victoria. It is also the largest of its kind.

Originally situated on Yates Street, where the Dominion Theatre now stands, New Method traces its history back to the 1890's when it was known as Bickerdike Laundry.

Just before the First World War the company moved to its present site on North Park Street and the name was changed to Victoria Steam Laundry. In 1926 it amalgamated with New Method Laundry, also on North Park Street, and it has retained that name.

The company has been locally owned and operated since its beginnings. In 1946 control passed to S. Stephen and his son, Hugh Stephen, who still lead the company.

Hugh Stephen, general manager, is a past president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, past vice-chairman of the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission and is at present vice-president of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

This new store, the fifth of its kind in the area, will be managed by Mrs. Anne Newman, who has been employed at New Method's downtown centre on View Street. She will be assisted by Mrs. Ruth Ellis.

The company's plant on North Park Street is one of the most modern in Canada. Throughout its long history it has been associated with many pioneer developments in its field. For instance, in 1935 it was the first firm in Western Canada to introduce Sanitone dry cleaning to its customers, the "Rolls-Royce" of dry cleaning.

Only some 2,000 firms throughout North America are licensed to use the Sanitone system.

Invisible laundry marking is another "first" for the company.

New Method's new store will offer the full range of fabric care services. In addition to its famous one-day shirt service, the store will offer family laundry, Sanitone dry cleaning, fur storage and linen rental.

The company furnishes a daily service to the finest hotels and motels in Greater Victoria and is also responsible for looking after a large part of the defence forces' laundry as well as schools and hospitals.

More than 500 businesses in Victoria rely on New Method to supply them with work clothing for their staff.

ICE CREAM

Like Old Days

The ice cream parlor of grandpa's day is back!

Or, at least, the modern equivalent.

It's the new Peter's Ice Cream store in the Town and Country shopping centre, right alongside the cool, tree-lined mall.

Just like the old days, it has tables and seats and stocks the widest range of ice creams in Canada, and it sells milk shakes, too — just right for a cool, quiet chat.

Only the chairs and the tables resemble the ice cream parlor that grandpa knew.

The ice cream has changed for one. It's better in every way — has won many prizes for superior flavor and texture.

And the old, ice-lined buckets of ice cream have changed into modern refrigerated chambers.

And it is all factory-to-consumer ice cream — fresh and wholesome.

And for anyone wanting enough ice cream for a party, there is no problem there, either. Want a gallon of ice cream? Two gallons? Half a ton? You can get it.

Machine Prepares Lively Meals—While You Play

The latest wrinkle in coin vending machines looks like a huge refrigerator with a transparent door and a large ice crusher on one side.

Matter of fact, it is a refrigerator with a transparent door and it holds up to 130 different food items.

It is also a miniature automaton, like New York's world-famous coin-in-the-slot machine.

And it will dispense, among other things, hamburgers, hot dogs, sandwiches, fresh fruit, jello, pie and pastries. It could dispense TV dinners, or chops and vegetables.

Alongside the miniature automaton is a small infrared oven.

Food items will be kept fresh in the refrigerated automaton and when they are bought they can be heated piping hot in just a few minutes in the oven.

The automaton will be installed in Loomer Lanes, the bowling alley in the Town and Country Square, shopping centre.

Other machines will dispense ice cream bars, hot and cold drinks, freshly-brewed coffee, candy and cigarettes. And a double coin changer, to handle 25-cent and 50-cent pieces, will make it all easy.

The man behind the slot machines is Lorne Lewis, whose slogan is "Service at the drop of a coin." He owns about 100 slot machines scattered in choice locations throughout Greater Victoria.

This Centre Just a Start For Dominion

Construction of the Town and Country shopping centre may be Dominion Construction Company's first venture in Greater Victoria, but it won't be the last.

"Our company has great faith in the future growth and potential of the whole area," vice-president Robert Bentall says, and the facts back him up.

At present the company is planning construction of a $10,000,000 industrial estate on a 70-acre site in Saanich, alongside the Trans-Canada Highway, between Burnside and Admirals Roads, and its proposal to build two downtown parking buildings for the city on a lease-purchase arrangement is being considered by city council.

In addition, the company has purchased additional land in Greater Victoria for future development.

A firm such as Dominion Construction, huge in size, capable of completely carrying through projects from conception to planning, to design and construction, is an invaluable asset to any community.

If the company is able to build the industrial estate it plans in Saanich, the return in taxes alone will be some $156,000 a year to the municipality. A sample of Dominion Construction's fine workmanship is now available in the Town and Country shopping centre.

Link With the Best

Opening of the new shopping centre marks the debut of a Canada-wide fashion store chain on Vancouver Island — Reitman's Incorporated.

The store is the 158th the company is operating, in more than 50 Canadian cities.

Catering to girls and women, the store follows the pattern established over the years, with departments for different items, such as coats, dresses, sportswear, suits, lingerie and accessories.

Modern design with wide aisles, restful lighting and air conditioning combine to make the store one of the most attractive on the Island.

Being one of the largest fashion store chains in North America, Reitman's send buyers to the fashion centres of the world to bring back the latest styles.

A resident New York buying office is maintained to watch innovations in fabrics and fashions.

Every purchase made in a Reitman store is backed by an iron-clad money-back guarantee and the assurance of first-quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices, made possible again by the size of the chain.

Reitman's have served millions of fashion-conscious Canadian girls and women for more than 33 years.

Their reputation and integrity have stood the test of time.

WHY ALL THE FUSS?

19 Out of 27 Have Own Parking Lots

Many of the petitioners against the banning of parking in the Capital Improvement District Commission plans to beautify Victoria's Douglas Street "gateway" already have off-street parking.

This is apparent to anyone driving the stretch of road between the Fountain Circle and Tolmie Avenue and backers of the plan are puzzled over the strong opposition that has been shown.

A total of 27 businessmen signed the petition against the CID's project to boulevard the city entrance with trees, grass and flowers.

Of the 27 opponents to the scheme, 19 have off-street parking and three have corner premises with parking available on side streets.

That leaves only five businesses represented in the petition without parking, and all of them are within two minutes walking distance of adequate parking, one proponent of the plan claimed.

19 Businesses Didn't Sign Up

It was also pointed out that 19 businesses on the stretch of street did not sign the petition; in fact favored the "face lift" wholeheartedly.

One of the 19 who signed the petition today admitted he signed without understanding what it was all about.

A. M. McPherson of the Doric Motor Hotel would have his name taken off.

"I was so darned busy at the time that I thought I was sign-

Tractor Swap Still Alive

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — New hopes arose Sunday that some way out may be found in the blocked negotiations to free prisoners captured in the anti-Castro rebel invasion of Cuba April 17.

John Hooker, executive secretary of the defunct Tractors for Freedom Committee, met for the second time in 24 hours with the 10-man delegation of prisoners dispatched here by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. The committee said negotiations with Castro were impossible.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — United Arab Republic and Israeli troops fought a 75-minute battle on the tense Syria-Israeli frontier Sunday night, an army spokesman said today.

BOY'S BODY IN PARK LAKE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The body of a three-year-old boy, his hands and feet bound with a woman's stockings, and a towel pulled tightly about his throat, was found Sunday floating in a park lake.

Police said he apparently was a victim of the mentally deranged woman who lured two other young children from their homes on Buffalo's north side recently; then left them bound and gagged beside railroad tracks. Those two children were not injured.

The boy, Andrew T. Ashley, had been missing since Friday afternoon. Police said death was due to drowning.

"no reprisals"

Japan Irked By Quotas On Imports

OTTAWA (UPI) — Japanese Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda said today he was dissatisfied with the quota system on Japanese exports to Canada.

But he said Japan was a free trader and as such would not take any reprisals against nations imposing restrictions on Japanese trade.

He predicted that Japan would double its imports from Canada. He said the increase would be mainly in iron ore, copper, coal and timber.

Ikeda told a press conference after holding a 90-minute discussion with Prime Minister Diefenbaker that Canada should increase its purchases from Japan because of Canada's favorable trade balance with that country. He noted that Canada sold $178 million worth of goods to Japan last year and bought $110 million in return.

"All we know is what we read in the paper," he said. Meanwhile, the CIDC was meeting this afternoon on the question. It was understood a further attempt would be made to save the plan, despite the city and Saanich councils' rejection of it in view of the parking ban.

Bribery on Land Deal Charged to Former MP

Mid-East Takeover Rejected

LONDON (AP) — Britain and Kuwait rejected today a move by Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem to annex the rich Persian Gulf oil sheikdom. Britain also reaffirmed a pledge to go to the aid of the ruler, Sheikh Abdullah Al-Salim As-Sabah, if asked.

But qualified diplomats here reported that the ruler made no such request for immediate help in talks at his palace today with Britain's representative, John Richmond.

The sheik and the British agreed instead they will try to resist Kassem's takeover move calmly and quietly.

Both hope Kassem will be persuaded to modify his stand. Both are anxious to avert a major new Middle East crisis that could upset the stability of the sheikdom that supplies 40 per cent of Britain's oil.

Britain ended its protectorate over Kuwait last week, but announced it will continue to guarantee Kuwait against aggression if the sheikdom asked for aid.

PLEDGES SUPPORT

Kassem's claim seemed to signal a political, rather than military, campaign to take over the territory. The Iraqi leader announced Sunday he would send notes to all governments with which the Baghdad authorities have relations setting forth his case.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy invoked the Taft-Hartley Act today in an effort to halt the strike of maritime unions.

In an executive order, the president said the strike will, if permitted to continue, imperil the health and safety of the U.S. At the same time, Kennedy set up a three-member emergency board to consider facts and circumstances of the dispute between sea-going unions and ship operators.

He set a deadline of Friday for the board to make its report.

The board, under the Taft-Hartley law, will make no recommendations, but will merely report on the issues of the dispute.

Unless the strike is settled in the meantime, Kennedy presumably will then seek an injunction to halt the strike for an 80-day cooling off period.

FLEMING:

Coyne or Gov't — He Had to Go

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming said today the central issue in the Coyne controversy is the question of who governs the country.

Opening Commons debate on the government's bill to have Parliament fire Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada, Mr. Fleming disclosed that in the winter of 1957-58 Mr. Coyne had rejected "firmly and angrily" a government request involving an easing of the money supply.

That, he said, was the reason the government disclaimed responsibility for monetary policy conducted by the central bank.

Mr. Fleming said the government might have acted sooner to have the governor removed. But he added:

"We desired above all to avoid creating controversy involving the Bank of Canada."

Referring to the government's request May 30 for Mr. Coyne's resignation, Mr. Fleming said the governor was given every opportunity to go quietly and with dignity.

But Mr. Coyne had defied "in the most deliberately provocative manner" the government and the central bank's board of directors, which on June 13 had also asked for his resignation.

In those circumstances, either the governor or the government had to go.

"Parliament must decide who governs this country," Mr. Fleming said that when the Progressive Conservative government took office June 21, 1957, after having criticized the "right money policy" with which Mr. Coyne had been associated, it decided to work with the bank governor "as far as it was possible to do so."

Two Arrested In Ontario

OTTAWA (UPI) — Raymond Bruneau, a former Liberal member of parliament, was arrested and charged today with accepting a $10,000 bribe in a 1956 post office deal during his term of office.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrested Bruneau at his Hawkesbury, Ont., home and brought him here to be arraigned Tuesday morning.

He was freed on $500 bail after spending several hours in jail.

Also arrested was Abe Bergeron of Cornwall, Ont., who allegedly owned the land involved in the deal. He was charged with "corrupting" Bruneau and was being brought here from Cornwall.

Bruneau, 44, represented the riding of Glengarry-Prescott in the House of Commons from 1949 to 1957, when he was defeated by a Conservative.

The police said the case involved land owned by Bergeron, who was selling it to the federal government as a post office site. It was alleged that Bergeron was willing to accept $38,000 when Bruneau said he could get more money for it.

Bruneau allegedly received a $48,000 cheque from the federal government for the land and turned over $38,000 to Bergeron.

WORKED FOR SEAWAY

Bergeron, 45, was employed by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority in Cornwall, but was dismissed when the Conservatives came to office in 1957.

Bergeron is now a service station operator while Bruneau is a businessman.

The charge alleged that Bruneau, "did unlawfully and corruptly agree to accept from Abe Bergeron a sum of money for the use of his influence of the said Raymond Bruneau in his official capacity as a Member of Parliament of Canada in respect of the sale of property owned by said Abe Bergeron to the Government of Canada and in respect to the employment of the said Bergeron by the Government of Canada."

Bruneau was charged under Sections 100 and 304 of the Criminal Code. One covered accepting of bribes by a member of parliament and the other false pretences.

Both men were brought to Ottawa because this was the site of the alleged offence.

HARE BAY, Nfld. (CP) — Some 200 firefighters watched anxiously early today, then relaxed slightly as two forest fires heading directly toward the community of Trinity subsided after sheering away from their direct route to the village.

However, the danger was not believed ended. Newfoundland's chief forester Ed Ralph, who visited the community 10 miles from here late Sunday night, advised Trinity residents there was no immediate danger to their community, but he would not say the village of 800 persons was out of danger.

REVOLT FAILS IN VENEZUELA

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A military revolt flared and quickly died today in Barcelona, President Romulo Betancourt's government announced. Forty persons were reported killed. Betancourt said the rebels, threatened by loyal forces by land, sea and air, held out only 4½ hours.

Radio Tropical of Barcelona said all the rebel leaders were captured. The interior ministry identified them as junior officers plus two ex-majors dismissed from the army for revolutionary plotting.

'LIKE PONTIUS PILATE'

Eichmann Admits Signing Orders

(CP from Reuters-AP)

JERUSALEM — Adolf Eichmann today for the first time made a qualified admission that he had any connection with signing orders for Jewish executions.

"As Eichmann testified in his own defence his lawyer asked him whether he had ever been concerned with the task of signing orders for Jewish executions.

"If you mean this, to transmit an order issued by higher authority onwards, and to sign the order of transmission of such instructions, then my reply is yes," Eichmann replied.

RELATED ORDERS

He said he had transmitted Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler's orders for "special treatment" of Jews to local police authorities.

Earlier, Eichmann had described himself as feeling like Pontius Pilate when Nazi "popes" eagerly pressed forward their "final solution" of the Jewish problem at the 1942 Wannsee meeting in Berlin.

Eichmann reached back into Christian history to describe his thoughts of almost 20 years ago when the decision was reached to exterminate the Jews.

All three Israeli judges leaned forward in rapt attention as Eichmann compared himself to the Roman governor who allowed the crucifixion of Christ.

Eichmann in explaining his reaction said:

"Here I felt a certain solace and appeasement, considering I had done my utmost despite my relatively low rank of lieutenant-colonel and I had thought of a 'final solution' which was not repellent or hideous but which was practical and feasible.

"I did my best to bring order into all the turmoil in deportations. My unflinching efforts could be seen in the Radom plan and later in the Madagascar plan for shipping the Jews to the island of Madagascar.

"I could say to myself that in spite of my determination, I had to toe the line. What was done was not my doing. I had the feeling of Pontius Pilate. I felt I was not guilty. What was laid down was done by the elite, the popes of the regime."

In the United Kingdom, 11 people work in mining, manufacturing and building for every one in agriculture.

Sunday Trade Held Illegal For Laundries

Supreme Court Hits Coin-Run Premises

Coin laundry operators are liable to charges under the Lord's Day Act if they remain open on Sunday, according to a decision handed down today by the Supreme Court of Canada today.

Two local operators of the automatic laundries protested the decision.

Gordon Carter, spokesman for a laundry firm that operates one of the automatic facilities, pointed out there could be repercussions in other areas of the automatic vending machine business, which operates without attendants, usually on a round-the-clock basis.

WHY LAUNDRIES?

"Why pick on coin laundries?" he asked.

By closing Sundays the Supreme Court is cutting down the days of operation on which "we might make any money. A wet Sunday could be the day we make a profit."

"We are not selling anything; it's a service," said the wife of another operator, Mrs. W. I. Shillington.

"If they are going to close us, are they going to close the juke boxes and cigaret machines, too?"

"Sunday is a big day. Some people can't get to do their laundry any other day. In some areas, coin-operated machines are the only ones available. I think they are a necessity."

"People want the service—they want to be clean," she said, pointing out that a United States court battle resolved in favor of the operators on this basis.

The Canadian ruling upheld that of a decision made by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

The court's judgment followed a test appeal case to determine whether the growing number of automatic laundries may remain open Sunday's even if no one is on hand to supervise them.

Veteran Coastal Engineer Dies In City at 72

James Reid, 72, marine engineer with the CPR and B.C. Coast Steamships since 1921, died Sunday night in hospital here.

Born in Paisley, Scotland, he entered CPR service in 1921 as third engineer on Ss Mont-eagle, and sailed in the Empress of Australia before transferring to the BCCSS.

Mr. Reid was a member of the Masonic lodge. The widow, Agnes, is at the family home, 1117 Faithful Street. Funeral arrangements will be announced by McCall's.

PRINCESS GUEST

Among the guests was Princess Jennie Chikmatoff, daughter of R. P. Butchart, founder of the company.

The fine sandy beach is an accumulation of years of waste sand from the cement works. A top layer of sand and gravel was brought in by the parks branch.

All the campsites have been full for the past four weekends, and on Friday night the demand was so great that some people slept out in the open on picnic tables.

Railway Underpass Widened

A narrow, crooked underpass on Helmcken Road under the E & N Railway track is being widened from its present 19 feet to about 41 feet.

Dobson and Marcus Construction Co. Ltd. of Nanaimo is doing the job for the E & N Railway and provincial highways department, and expects to have it finished within two months.

Railway service will not be interrupted, even though a new steel span will be installed.

CONCRETE DECK

The span, being built at Yarrow's Ltd., will carry a concrete deck and conventional ties set in gravel ballast.

Falswork now is in place to support the track while work goes ahead on new abutments.

The 41-foot width is between abutments, which are at right angles to the track. The roadway, which approaches at an angle there, cannot take full advantage of the distance.

Highways department officials are considering relocating a small bridge on the road to give a more favorable approach to the underpass.

Publicity Bureau Advised to Plug Beacon Hill Park

Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau today was told a "pull up its socks" in publicizing Beacon Hill Park.

The barbed criticisms were thrown at the bureau by city parks committee after it learned complaints had been lodged by visiting Vancouverites who could not find the picnic areas or toilets in the park.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren said many busloads—with parties running up to 200 persons—are visiting the park this summer on one-day excursions using the government ferries.

"Well, the publicity bureau should get a strong protest from this committee," said chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Charlie Brown's kite-flying attempts have lived over local page considerably for some time now. Since Charlie must hold the world's record for low-flying kites, I'd like to know what the record for high-flying kites is. P. S. N.

A. The altitude record for kites is 35,385 feet, which was attained by 10 kites flown in tandem.

Oak Bay, Saanich Fight 'Mountain' Fire

Fighting a brush fire on Mount Tolmie Sunday took the combined forces of Oak Bay and Saanich as the blaze spread some four acres across the municipalities' common border. Firemen were called at 5:45 p.m. and worked until 11 p.m. before controlling the blaze. Rated as the most serious so far this year in Greater Victoria, the fire consumed clumps of bush, moss and grass on the rocky east slope of the mountain. Firemen said nearby houses were not endangered. (Ryan Bros. Photo.)

Aldermen Keen On Lakeside Golf Course

City-parks committee today showed enthusiasm for a suggested nine-hole golf course at Beaver Lake which would be open to the general public rather than restricted to a private membership.

It asked for a proposal in writing so that negotiations could begin.

Well-known city golfer John D. Carlow said he would be prepared to pay the city $4,000 annually for a 30 to 40-year lease on the 50-acre property so he could develop the course. It would be ready for operation within two years.

CROWDED

He said such a course would relieve pressure on private clubs in this area which cannot accommodate the demand for membership.

"I think this has strong possibilities and it is the only plan that we have received for a course at Beaver Lake," commented committee chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney.

Mr. Mooney said he had hopes that Saanich council would exempt a golf course from taxation "because I feel sure they are conscious of the need for this facility."

THOSE CLOUDS WERE REALLY ONLY TEASING

Farmers and gardeners are going to have to wait a while before they get some rain.

Relief for dried up fields and lawns seemed just a few hours away this morning as Sunday night's winds brought in a likely looking batch of clouds.

By mid-morning, however, most of the clouds had departed, leaving Victorians with their usual blue-skies-and-sunshine diet.

Rain is not expected, says weatherman William Mackie, except in the occasional "isolated sprinkle." A small craft warning continues for Juan de Fuca Strait. Winds will be fairly strong from the west.

Maximum temperature today and Tuesday is expected to be between 62 and 70 degrees.

Throngs Jam B.C.'s Newest Camping Site

Cars jammed the black-topped approach road to Bamerton Park Sunday as thousands visited the B.C. government's new camping and picnic grounds adjoining a large man-made beach below the Malahat Highway.

Many motorists turned back when they saw that parking room was scarce. But those who came early made full use of the 50 campsites, 35 picnic tables and the concrete beach house.

The 69-acre park, donated by the B.C. Cement Co., was officially opened Saturday afternoon by Recreation Minister Earle Westwood in the presence of hundreds of beach picknickers and about 70 official guests.

FINE EXAMPLE

"The company has set a fine example," said Mr. Westwood as he pulled aside two flags to display an aluminum plaque decorated with colored enamel figures.

Earlier, the official guests attended a reception and luncheon at the nearby home of R. E. Haskins, vice-president of B.C. Cement Co.

PRINCESS GUEST

Among the guests was Princess Jennie Chikmatoff, daughter of R. P. Butchart, founder of the company.

The fine sandy beach is an accumulation of years of waste sand from the cement works. A top layer of sand and gravel was brought in by the parks branch.

All the campsites have been full for the past four weekends, and on Friday night the demand was so great that some people slept out in the open on picnic tables.

Ambulance Run Delays Denied

Victoria Ambulance Service operator J. D. Carlow today denied ambulance runs to hospital are delayed so drivers can ascertain who will pay the cost.

The suggestion had been made in a complaint to city health committee.

"We have never turned down a patient for lack of money," he told the committee. "In fact, the opposite is the case. I could paper this committee room with unpaid bills."

MONTE ROBERTS

"Is it hot enough for you?"

This is a question which can be asked with impunity, and the reasonable assumption of receiving a reasonable answer, almost anywhere in the world.

Except in this, the Fairest City of Them All. In this, the Fairest City of Them All, it is almost impossible to get a firm answer to the popular heat-wave question, "Is it hot enough for you?"

Not so in London, Eng., or London, Ont. Not so in Paris, France, or Paris, Arkansas. Not so in Vancouver, B.C., or Vancouver, Wash. Or in Berlin (West or East Germany, take your choice), or Kitchener, Ont. (no choice there).

Even in Omsk, Tomsk, Petruska and Moscow itself, behind the Iron Curtain, where one is careful to check on the current exchange rates before exchanging the time of day, one can expect an answer to the question: "Is it hot enough for you?"

The answer might be aye, nay, si, non, yup, or nyet. But the respondent has no hesitation in answering the query.

Things are vastly different in this The Fairest City of Them All. Ask a citizen: "Is it hot enough for you," and in all conscience he will have to reply:

"This will depend on the given instance of the given situation where this question was put to me."

"What I mean is I require a definition of the term 'is it hot enough' on the basis of location of the thermometer. 'No person,' the citizen is duty bound to say, 'may answer your question without being fully cognizant of the mercury analysis.'

"At this very instant," the citizen will say, "the official reading on Gonzales Heights is 66. By no means," he will add, "hot enough for me."

"But the downtown temperature, according to Radio Station 'A' is 74."

"And this is just hot enough for me."

"On the other hand, Radio Station 'B' says the downtown temperature is 88."

"Much too hot for me."

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Preliminary foundation work on Victoria Building Co-operative Union's new labor headquarters has been finished.

Major construction on the $150,000 building will begin in the fall, provided a current capital drive is successful.

The union seeks a minimum $50,000, or about $40,000 more than what is on hand, before replacing present headquarters of the district's organized labor at 615 Pandora.

A recurrent controversy involving complaints against the number of cats at a Duchess Street home was referred to a special committee of officials today by city health committee.

The officials will report on existing authority for dealing with the complaints and possible changes in regulations.

Heavy damage resulted to two cars when they collided at Bay and Quadra Streets Saturday at 9:55 p.m.

Lena Polkinghorne, a passenger in one of the cars, was released from the Royal Jubilee Hospital after treatment for head injuries and a nose-bleed.

Police said one car was driven by John J. Polkinghorne, of 710 Lampson Street, and the other by Greta Heaton, 2622 Quadra Street.

Victoria Lions Club today was given approval by city parks committee to stage a "donkey baseball" exhibition in Royal Athletic Park towards the end of August.

Edward William Steele, of 1021 Cook Street, was fined $250 and restricted to business driving only, after pleading guilty in city police court today to a charge of impaired driving.

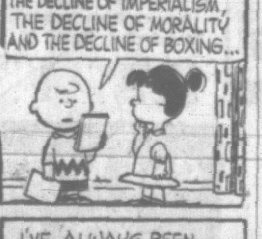

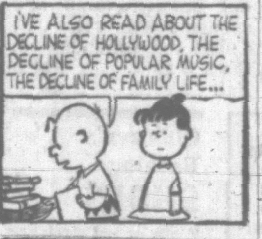

The Saanich Astrophysical Observatory recorded a "faint earthquake" in the Kamloops area early Sunday night.

An official said the tremor probably wasn't felt any more than 10 miles away.

He said these earth tremors are common west of the coast range but that this is the first one in a long time reported from the Okanagan or Kamloops area.

A prayer and healing study meeting will be held on Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the Cathedral Memorial Hall.

A meeting of the Federal Superannuates will be held in the YMCA banquet room on Wednesday at 2 p.m.

Scorched and molten metal, and fragments of wings and tail assembly, are all that are left of a Martin Mars water bomber which crashed Friday west of Parksville killing its crew of four.

An RCMP officer who led the investigating party to the scene Saturday said there was "nothing left" of the 42-ton flying boat which could drop up to 35 tons of water on a fire at one time.

STREAMS OF METAL

The four-engined plane had been called from its Spruce Lake base shortly before 3 p.m. to douse a fire which had broken out on Northwest Bay division logging operations of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

CARTWHEELED

It scooped up water to fill its tanks in a run across Nanos Bay, then headed for the fire. It went through the smoke without dropping its load of water, then failed to clear a hill beyond. One wingtip struck a tree, and the navy blue and red ship "cartwheeled" to its death in the forest.

Killed were the pilot, W. G. Richmond, of Sidney; Jack V.

Speech on Budget By Argue Tonight

Last week's federal budget will be the topic of CCF House of Commons leader Hazen Argue, who speaks here tonight.

Mr. Argue, touring western Canada on his campaign for the leadership of the New Party, will speak at 8 p.m. in Woodsworth Hall, 721 Courtney.

He will speak in Nanaimo Tuesday.

Ahoy There! Military Type To Teach Music to Sailors

Capt. James M. Gayfer, director of the Canadian Guards Band since 1954, will assume duties as an instructor at the RCN's school of music at HMCS Naden early in July.

"He is the first 'outsider' appointed to the school's previously all-navy staff. It is understood there is a move afoot to expand the RCN school of music to include trainees for bands of all three armed services.

Before joining the Guards Band, Capt. Gayfer was director of music of the band of the First Canadian Infantry Brigade, and before that was with the band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

AN EARLY LINEUP of parents and children, all eager that the children learn how to swim, was seen at the Kinsmen Gorge Park on Saturday. More than 200 children, aged eight to 12, registered for swimming classes being held at the park from July 3 to August 11 by the Victoria Kinettes. There are still openings for beginners and juniors which may be filled by registering on Friday at 10 a.m. in the park. Parents must accompany children. Fee is $2.

ON LAND DEAL

Ex-MP Charged With Bribery

OTTAWA (UPI) — Raymond Bruneau, a former Liberal member of parliament, was arrested and charged today with accepting a $10,000 bribe in a 1956 post office deal during his term of office.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrested Bruneau at his Hawkesbury, Ont., home and brought him here to be arraigned Tuesday morning.

He was freed on $500 bail after spending several hours in jail.

Also arrested was Abe Bergeron of Cornwall, Ont., who allegedly owned the land involved in the deal. He was charged with "corrupting" Bruneau and was being brought here from Cornwall.

Bruneau, 44, represented the riding of Glengarry-Prescott in the House of Commons from 1949 to 1957, when he was defeated by a Conservative.

The police said the case involved land owned by Bergeron, who was selling it to the federal government as a post office site. It was alleged that Bergeron was willing to accept $38,000 when Bruneau said he could get more money for it.

JFK MOVES TO HALT
SHIP STRIKE 80 DAYS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy invoked the Taft-Hartley Act today in an effort to halt the strike of maritime unions.

In an executive order, the president said the strike will, if permitted to continue, imperil the health and safety of the U.S. At the same time, Kennedy set up a three-member emergency board to consider facts and circumstances of the dispute between sea-going unions and ship operators.

He set a deadline of Friday for the board to make its report.

The board, under the Taft-Hartley law, will make no recommendations, but will merely report on the issues of the dispute.

Unless the strike is settled in the meantime, Kennedy presumably will then seek an injunction to halt the strike for an 80-day cooling off period.

Mid-East Takeover Rejected

LONDON (AP) — Britain and Kuwait rejected today a move by Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem to annex the rich Persian Gulf oil sheikdom.

Britain also reaffirmed a pledge to go to the aid of the ruler, Sheikh Abdullah Al-Salim Al-Sabah, as asked.

But qualified diplomats here reported that the ruler made no such request for immediate help in talks at his palace today with Britain's representative, John Richmond.

The cheik and the British agreed instead they will try to resist Kassem's takeover move calmly and quietly.

Both hope Kassem will be persuaded to modify his stand. Both are anxious to avert a major new Middle East crisis that could upset the stability of the sheikdom that supplies 40 per cent of Britain's oil.

Britain ended its protectorate over Kuwait last week, but announced it will continue to guarantee Kuwait against aggression if the sheikdom asked for aid.

Kassem's claim seemed to signal a political, rather than military, campaign to take over the territory. The Iraqi leader announced Sunday he would send notes to all governments with which the Baghdad authorities have relations setting forth his case.

But Iraq put up a belligerent front. A dispatch from Baghdad said Iraq's army pledges support.

WHY ALL THE FUSS?

19 Out of 27
Have Own
Parking Lots

Many of the petitioners against the banning of parking in the Capital Improvement District Commission plans to beautify Victoria's Douglas Street "gateway" already have off-street parking.

This is apparent to anyone driving the stretch of road between the Fountain Circle and Tolmie Avenue and backers of the plan are puzzled over the strong opposition that has been shown.

A total of 27 businesses signed the petition against the CID's project to boulevard the city entrance with trees, grass and flowers.

19 Businesses Didn't Sign Up

It was also pointed out that 19 businesses on the stretch of street did not sign the petition; in fact favored the "face lift" wholeheartedly.

One of the 27 who signed the petition today admitted he signed without understanding what it was all about.

A. M. McPherson of the Doric Motor Hotel would have his name taken off.

"I was so darned busy at the time that I thought I was signing a petition to ban parking," he said. "I'm against all parking on arterial highways."

On the other hand, Bud Price, who runs a repair shop at 2892 Douglas, and was one of the organizers of the petition stuck to his guns claiming:

Banning of parking on the street would mean loss of business. Motorists simply would not pull into side streets to park.

H. W. Neff of Saanich Lumber Yards Ltd., said his firm had limited off-street parking, but it was inadequate for the amount of business done. And for the most

Accuses Gov't
Of 'Blackmail'

OTTAWA (UPI) — Bank of Canada Governor James E. Coyne today accused the Diefenbaker government of "blackmailing" him into resigning and demanded a parliamentary inquiry into his dismissal.

In a six-page letter to Finance Minister Donald Fleming, Coyne said the position of the central bank governor "will be destroyed and the whole institution will become merely an arm of a political machine."

If the governor is to be terrorized into resigning whenever the government of the day wants him to.

The letter, released to the press in the midst of parliamentary debate on a bill to fire him, charged the government used "blackmailing tactics" in seeking his resignation before calling a "snap" general election.

Coyne said the issue at stake was "The right of Canadians to know why I refused to meet on."

Fleming Version
—He Had to Go

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming said today the central issue in the Coyne controversy is the question of who governs the country.

Opening Commons debate on the government's bill to have Parliament fire Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada, Mr. Fleming disclosed that in the winter of 1957-58 Mr. Coyne had rejected "firmly and angrily" a government request involving an easing of the money supply.

That, he said, was the reason the government disclaimed responsibility for monetary policy conducted by the central bank.

Mr. Fleming said the government might have acted sooner to have the governor removed. But he added:

"We desired above all to avoid creating controversy involving the Bank of Canada."

Referring to the government's request May 30 for Mr. Coyne's resignation, Mr. Fleming said the governor was given every opportunity to go quietly and with dignity.

But Mr. Coyne had defied "in the most deliberately provocative manner" the government and the central bank's board of directors, which on June 13 had also asked for his resignation.

In those circumstances, either the governor or the government had to go.

"Parliament must decide who governs this country," Mr. Fleming said that when the Progressive Conservative government took office June 21, 1957, after having criticized the "tight money policy" with which Mr. Coyne had been associated, it decided to work with the bank governor "as far as it was possible to do so."

In the winter of 1957-58, Mr. Coyne refused to meet
